Reds Create Berlin Political Bloc, Control Press, Radio—Eisenhower

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(UP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower reported today that the Communist party has established a "political bloc" in Berlin but that any similar maneuver in the American zone of occupation will be discouraged.

In his second monthly report on American occupation policies, he said that political blocs run counter "to traditional American concepts of political activity and vigorous political life in a democratic sense."

The four parties in Berlin—the Communist, Social Democratic, Liberal Democratic and Christian Democratic—joined in a united front, at the initiative of the Communist party, to unify their policies on all important matters, Eisenhower said.

GAMBLING STORY DOUBTED

$279,000 Stealings Admitted by Banker

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16.—(UP)—A rotund, apple-cheeked banker, so thrifty he brought his lunch to work, today faced a long prison term as the confessed embezzler of $279,000 from his company's savings department.

Navy Slashes Point Score For Discharge

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(P)—The Navy tonight announced reductions in point scores for the greater part of its personnel, intended to release one-third of its war-end strength by the first of January.

With further cuts predicted in December and January, the score for enlisted men will be reduced from 44 to 41 points, effective Nov. 1.

On the same date male officers will be cut from 49 to 46 points, WAVE officers from 39 to 32 and WAVE enlisted personnel from 29 to 26.

In other classes the further predicted cuts are: For male officers other than doctors, to 44 points on Dec. 1 and to 43 points on Jan. 1.

For enlisted male personnel, to 39 points on Dec. 1 and to 38 points on Jan. 1. For WAVE officers, to 30 points on Dec. 1 and 29 points on Jan. 1. For enlisted WAVES, to 24 points on Dec. 1 and 23 points on Jan. 1.

The Navy also announced that all married commissioned Navy nurses, both regular and reserve, are being released from service.

Jobless Man Wins $8,614 Daily Double

SALEM, N. H., Oct. 16.—(P)—A Boston Navy Yard worker collected $8,614.40—second highest daily double payoff in American race track history—today on a hunch bet he made at Rockingham race track.

Martin Rush, of Boston, the first of the three winners to cash his winning ticket, said that he is being laid off from his Navy job next week.

"It is mighty tough to be detached from a job," Rush said, and that's why he picked two long shots, "Mighty Tough" and "Detach," for his $2 bet on the double.

Mighty Tough was a 45-1 shot, paying $91.80, but won the photo finish first race, and Detach, which went to the post at 80 to one, paid $162.60.

The double payoff is topped only by payment of $10,772.40 on Joy Bet and Merry Caroline at Washington park, Chicago, on Aug. 14, 1939.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Campopiano, Salem, won on another ticket. Winner on the third was not identified.

FLIGHT TO DISGRACE

Hess' British 'Peace Mission' Angered Hitler

By PIERRE J. HUSS

LAKE AMMER, BAVARIA, Oct. 16.—(INS)—Prof. Karl Haushofer whose theory of geo-politics gave Hitler the idea to seize more "living space" for Germany, shed new light today on the 1941 mystery flight to Britain of his close friend "our dear Rudolph" Hess.

The 75-year-old exponent of "Lebensraum" claimed to have the inside story of Hess' strange mission as known to only a few Nazi higher ups.

He said that Hess was attempting to arrange a compromise peace with Great Britain before the Nazis attacked Russia.

Haushofer asserted that his own son, Albrecht, since slain in the last days of the fight for Berlin, was the go-between in arrangements instituted by Hess as early as the summer of 1940.

Here is the story Haushofer told me of the Hess flight:

"Hess sent for my older son, Albrecht, of the geo-political department of the University of Berlin, and had a long talk with him.

"Hess said to my son: 'Albrecht, something has to be done. Unless we find a way to end this war soon, Germany is apt to lose it in the end. We must talk to the British.

"I want you to get in touch with your English friends and arrange for a quiet meeting on neutral soil."

"Well, my son came down here to discuss the matter with my wife and myself. He had friends in England and was on friendly terms with the Duke of Hamilton.

"But we warned him to go easy, and reminded him that unless

He reported that the Communists hold a majority of the strategic positions in the capital city, but "informal reports indicate that a fair and impartially supervised election in Berlin would not support the present Communist party dominance of posts."

He said these reports indicate that the Social Democrats and the Christian-Democratic Union would find greater favor.

ALL PRINT PAPERS

All four Berlin parties publish newspapers, he said, and the editorial offices are located in the Soviet sector—"where they were moved apparently at Soviet invitation a few days prior to the entry of the U. S. forces into Berlin."

He said the newspapers and the Berlin radio are under Soviet censorship and "have not been generally or freely available to political parties or leaders other than Communist." Soviet authorities allocate each paper enough newsprint to print 100,000 copies, except that "the Communist paper is permitted to print 200,000 copies."

Eisenhower reported that the denazification of Germany continued unabated and that the removal of active Nazis from positions of influence in public and private life had passed its peak.

He said that 18,300 active Nazis were arrested during August, bringing the total number arrested in the U. S. zone to 66,500. Denazification of banks in the U. S. zone was virtually completed with the removal of some 3,000 Nazis. This program was highlighted by the taking over of I. G. Farbenindustrie and the arrest of 100 businessmen in Bavaria.

LITTLE OPPOSITION

He said that, although criticism of the occupation is not lacking, active opposition is almost totally absent, and added:

"In general, the German is too busy providing himself with food and fuel for his daily needs and worrying about the problems of food, fuel and shelter for the coming winter to have much time or energy to carry on activities hostile to the occupying forces."

He reported that large food imports will be needed before the 1946 harvest to forestall "very serious and widespread malnutrition." Fuel and transportation also are pressing problems, he said.

While the allowable standard of living for the German people has not been decided definitely, he added, it is apparent that "what will be available to them in the near future will remain

Warmer Weather Forecast for Today

The weatherman promises that furnaces can be turned off today as fair and warmer weather comes to Atlanta for a few days' visit. Temperatures are expected to range from 40 to 73 degrees today.

Yesterday's low and high readings at the Municipal Airport were 42 and 64 degrees.

Dixie Coal Shortage Acute; Cotton Mills Face Shutdown

IN STORM'S PATH—Wreckage lies in the wake of a Pacific typhoon that ripped its way over Okinawa, bringing death and damage. Upper, left, shows ruins of the SS Ocelot, awash in Buckner bay, as a repair vessel

450,000 Off Jobs In Disputes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Solid Fuels Administration yesterday predicted that if the coal mine strikes continue until the end of this week cotton mills throughout the Southeast would be forced to shut down. Home heating was also threatened.

In the meantime, the number of strike idle throughout the nation climbed close to last week's level of 450,000 under the impetus of new disputes, more mine walk-outs and resulting steel furnace shutdowns.

Another factor that kept the total up was failure of a back-to-work call among AFL longshoremen in New York, with only a fraction of the 35,000 strikers returning to the wharves.

Major developments included:

1. Soft coal operators met again in Washington despite the breakdown of government negotiations to settle a dispute over union recognition that has 218,000 off the job in six states.
2. Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. announced the coal strike had compelled it to lay off 15,000 steel workers instead of the 10,000 previously estimated.
3. Buses rolled again under state operation in eastern Massachusetts after a strike of 1,800 AFL employees cut off service to 1,000,000 daily riders for three days.
4. The CIO threatened a general strike of 18,000 members in New Castle County (Wilmington), Delaware.

Meeting in Washington, bituminous coal operators clung to a faint hope that a settlement might be reached to get miners back into the pits where about half the normal output of coal is being lost daily.

Secretary Ickes said after a White House call the coal situation "is bad and it's getting worse" but that he did not think it "advisable" for the government to seize the mines.

After 10 days of sessions, conferences between the operators and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, under the guidance of Secretary Schwelbennbach, collapsed Monday night.

The secretary of labor is considering a War Labor Board proposal to set up a tripartite commission for handling reconversion wage problems by panels making advisory findings similar to those of special emergency boards used in railroad labor relations.

As new thousands were added to the list of inactive miners, steel production suffered.

Carnegie-Illinois Steel said the furloughing of 15,000 steel workers as a result of the coal dispute included employees of its Youngstown, Ohio, plant in addition to plants in Pennsylvania.

The company's operating rate in the Pittsburgh area this week was 28 per cent of capacity, lowest in more than a decade. The company told only a three-day supply of coal on hand.

Argentine City Is Strikebound In First Peronist Show of Strength

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 16.—(UP)—Labor supporters of Col. Juan D. Peron, ousted Argentine "strong man," almost paralyzed normal activity in Tucuman in northern Argentina today by a strike which cut off transport, light and water service, dispatches said.

Eight sugar refineries in Tucuman province outside the city were closed when workers left their jobs, Tucuman advices reported.

This first show of strength by Peronists as the Army and Navy sought to form a civilian cabinet pending national elections was reflected here when pro-Peronists tried vainly to get workers in the industrial Buenos Aires suburb of Avellaneda to strike. Major labor leaders repudiated the idea of a general strike in Peron's support.

As a move to offset a possible attempt by pro-Fascists to call a general strike, the government assured workers that gains they had obtained during the Peron regime would be retained.

WANT COURT RULE

There was a general strike starting at 6 a. m. in the small town of Resistencia in Chaco territory, but this was in support of demands that the Army and Navy turn over the government to the supreme court pending an election. Success of the Tucuman strike was attributed to benefits obtained by workers under the Peron regime.

Strikers affixed placards to walls saying "kill a student and you will be patriotic" and "death to students." Students led in the opposition which led to the resignation of Peron as vice president, war minister and labor secretary. It was understood that the government had sent out orders to police to put down any Peronist demonstrations and to watch carefully any pro-Peron labor leaders who might try to call a general strike.

NO FORMAL ARREST

Gen. Eduardo Avalos, war minister, caused some surprise by an announcement that Peron was under protective custody, not formal arrest. It was explained that the protective custody was regarded as necessary for Peron's own safety.

Before this announcement, it was officially stated that Peron was suffering from pleurisy and had been offered facilities to go to the Central military hospital here.

Peronists suggested that the transfer might mean the first step

State's Pardon Board Paroles Joseph Jacobs

Joseph Jacobs, Atlanta attorney, who has served eight months of a one-year sentence on charges of receiving stolen goods, was granted parole late yesterday by the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

This was the climax of a two-month effort by Jacobs, who became eligible for parole in July, 1945, and scores of friends and associates to obtain his release from a Fulton county public works camp. Jacobs, who had established a national reputation as an attorney for organized labor, also operated a jewelry repair shop. He was convicted of receiving articles of jewelry allegedly stolen after several articles were found in his establishment.

His first application for parole was denied by the board Aug. 20, 1945.

In a statement, accompanying the order for the parole, members of the board—who are Chairman Edward B. Everett, Grover C. Byars and Mrs. Helen Williams Coxon—said:

"In granting the parole at this time, the board wishes to restate its previous finding that the prisoner was convicted in accordance with the law and the verdict was affirmed by the higher courts and so far as can be ascertained, Jacobs was denied none of his constitutional rights."

NO GROUNDS

"Also, nothing has been shown this board, to date, which would authorize the issuance of a pardon on the grounds of non-guilt."

Among those who petitioned the board to reconsider its August denial of Jacobs' parole application were J. S. Martin, vice president and southern regional director of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union (AFL); Carmen Lucia, southern representative of the Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' Union (AFL); Frank McCallister, labor member of the Fourth Regional War Labor Board; George L. Gooze, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor; and E. L. Abernethy, southern representative of the Laundry Workers' International Union (AFL).

In an open letter to the board, which was printed in The Constitution, these men deplored the parole denial. They pointed out that the board, in a statement issued at the time, made no "reference to the fact that 10 out of 12 jurors who voted to convict Jacobs signed a statement to the trial judge petitioning for a new trial and stating that there had been 'reasonable doubt' in their minds as to his guilt at the time of conviction."

At the hearing on the parole application, the group wrote, "we understand Mayor Hartfield informed the board he knew personally that politics and pressure were involved in Mr. Jacobs' indictment and prosecution." They added that the board also failed to note "that the trial judge in

BLAME BIRDS

Pneumonia Spread Laid To Pigeons?

The pigeon population of Atlanta, Fulton county and Georgia is suspected of spreading a form of virus pneumonia akin to parrot fever. No concrete proof is at hand.

This was the verdict of Dr. James F. Hackney, city health director, and Dr. T. F. Sellers, in charge of the laboratory for the state health department, who declare there is little evidence to base a reasonable suspicion against the birds.

While Philadelphia and Chicago wage a war of words over charges that pigeon flocks carry virus pneumonia, Atlantans and Georgians proceed blandly about their business and have few if any worries from that source.

Pigeon fanciers in the east and midwest are girding themselves to defend their pets, while laboratory experts argue the birds are disease carriers.

The experts warn also that Chicago and Philadelphia to exterminate the pigeons. Some rate Atlantans demand that they be culled here, but thus far no local action has been made. Dr. Hackney says none of the local birds have been examined as carriers, so far as he knows, and Dr. Sellers avers the state department is not equipped to make the tedious and expensive experiments necessary to pin the disease on pigeons.

The experts warn also that this varying degrees of virus pneumonia are tricky, hard to pin down and much too complicated for laymen to determine. They all are related, but merely as distant cousins, and the doctors don't really know all there is to know about the infection or its sources.

Southern Natural Gas Co. Cancels Plans To Buy Atlanta Gas Light Co.

The Southern Natural Gas Company has cancelled its plans to purchase the Atlanta Gas Light Company.

Notification of the cancellation was handed yesterday to the Georgia Public Service Commission by C. T. Chenery, senior officer of the Southern Natural Gas Company and president of its parent organization, the Federal Water and Power Corporation.

This action followed two days of discussion of the proposed sale between Chenery and members of the commission, Commission Chairman Walter R. McDonald said. The Public Service Commission recently announced that it would intervene before the federal Securities and Exchange Commission in opposition to the slated transaction.

Chenery said the decision to cancel the purchase plans had been reached with the complete accord of George Devendorf, president of the Consolidated Electric and Gas Company, which controls the Atlanta Gas Light Company. He said he discussed the matter with Devendorf before informing the commission of the decision.

"We wanted to make this transaction," he said, "but we do not want to consummate the sale if there is opposition to it in Georgia."

Commenting on the development, Chairman McDonald said the commission was "gratified with the position taken by the heads of the companies concerned."

McDonald said the decision "will give Georgia interests a chance to bid for the purchase of the Atlanta Gas Light Company and manage it as an independent organization."

The commission has contended that the proposed sale was not "proper integration" of the utility interests. It has contended that consummation of the transaction would deprive it of "a large measure" of its rate regulatory power for the sale of gas to consumers in Georgia.

The Southern Natural Gas Company is the pipeline company from which the Atlanta Gas Light Company purchases its commodity for resale to the public. McDonald said some 60 per cent of the Southern Natural Gas Company's business has been with the Atlanta concern.

Emory Authorizes Conferring of Ph.D's

Election of four new members, including two Atlantans, and re-election of the present officers took place yesterday at the annual meeting of the Emory University board of trustees.

Other important actions of the board included:

1. Authorization for the conferring of the Ph. D. degree, as part of the expanded program of the graduate school.
2. Liberalization of the university's athletic policy to make possible intercollegiate competition in all sports except football, basketball and basketball.

Dr. Lester Rumble, Dr. Wadley R. Glenn

3. Decision to reopen the Emory Junior College at Valdosta in the fall of 1946.

The four new trustees, whose terms will expire in 1950, were elected to fill vacancies caused by deaths and resignations. One of the resignations was that of Thomas K. Glenn, Atlanta banker, who has been a member of the board for 25 years.

Glenn explained that the pressure of other duties made it inadvisable for him to continue. His resignation was accepted with regret and a scroll, expressing the university's appreciation of his services, was ordered to be presented to him later.

To succeed his father, the board elected Dr. Wadley R. Glenn, administrator of Crawford W. Long hospital, which is now owned by Emory. Dr. Glenn recently has returned from duty overseas as a commander in the Naval Medical Corps.

NEW MEMBERS
Other new members are Dr. Lester Rumble, pastor of St. Mark Methodist church, Atlanta; the Rev. Luther A. Harrell, superintendent of the American district of the Methodist church, Cordale, and Dr. Embree Hoss Blackard, pastor of the Myers Park Methodist church, Charlotte, N. C.

To take Glenn's place on the executive committee, the board elected J. C. Malone, executive vice president of the Retail Credit Company, Atlanta.

The officers re-elected include Dr. Goodrich C. White, president of the university; G. H. Mew, treasurer and business manager, and the following officials of the board: Chairman, Charles Howard Candler, Atlanta; vice chairman, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, Huntington, W. Va.; executive vice chairman, W. D. Thomson, Atlanta, and secretary, H. Y. McCord, Atlanta.

Other members of the executive committee, besides Malone, are Preston S. Arkwright, Dr. F. Phinizy Calhoun and Robert W. Woodruff, all of Atlanta.

In his annual report, Pres. White said that the present enrollment is "satisfactory," considering the continuance of selective service. The university this fall has 1,762 students, including 168 veterans of World War II.

The housing problem is becoming "very serious" and early construction of a dormitory for women students and an apartment house for married students is imperative, the president pointed out.

Construction of a student activities building and gymnasium was ranked by Dr. White as first among the university's needs. The board adopted a resolution pledging that these buildings would go up at the earliest practicable moment.

A master plan, showing the tentative location of all proposed buildings, was presented by a special committee headed by Treas. G. H. Mew.

Mew reported that the univer-

DUTCH TO GIVE IKE GOLD MEDAL

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 16.—(AP)—When Gen. Eisenhower was received at the city hall 10 days ago the burgomaster explained the intention had been to present him a gold medal, but that no gold was available.

This remark, the newspaper's Algemeen Handelsblad said today, called forth a number of letters from its readers offering gold watches and wedding rings, to be melted down. City officials received similar offers.

"While these offers are appreciated," the newspaper said, "it will not be necessary to make use of them. The medal is already being made and can be sent to Gen. Eisenhower next week."

Baptist Group Holds Meeting In Lamp-Lit Church Near Newnan

By BILL BORING.

NEWNAN, Ga., Oct. 16.—"How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord..."

It's the 117th session of the Western Baptist Association, meeting in the little white, lamp-lit Bethlehem church in the pines and in the oaks.

They are worshipping in the same old way and singing the same old hymns they did 55 years ago when the church was dedicated.

"The only difference today," says Mrs. Tommie Moore, 76, "is that the people come in cars and not in buggies and horse-drawn wagons."

Mrs. Moore, who was present today, attended the services dedicating the Bethlehem church. She remembers the services well. She shall never forget the day, for sitting in a buggy, in a grove across the street, she became engaged to Harry Moore, one of the Bethlehem members. And after their marriage, Mrs. Moore joined the Bethlehem congregation.

There was a barbecue today—five hogs and two lambs and, two pots of stew—and the people ate under the trees from long benches, just as they did in the long ago.

Gov. Arnall was there, but today he was just Brother Arnall and Cousin Ellis, just one of the 600 association members who came to attend to the business of their church, to sing the old songs, to worship, to pass the time of day with kinfolks, to exchange pleasantries with old friends, to reminisce.

The Rev. H. B. Loftin, pastor of the Baptist church of Moreland and of Bethel in Heard county, delivered the annual sermon, exhorting the congregation to restore the family altar, to remember that church loyalties are the foundations of Christian life.

Then, there was the election of officers for the coming year. The present officers were re-elected.

The offering of the Ph. D. degree probably will come first in biology and chemistry, Pres. White said. It will be expanded to other fields, such as English and history, as soon as the return of faculty members from military service and the expansion of facilities make it feasible.

While the restatement of the university's athletic policy by the board re-emphasizes Emory's determination to stay out of intercollegiate football, basketball and basketball, it will make possible an enlarged program in other sports, Pres. White said.

The Emory Junior College at Valdosta, established in 1928, was closed in 1942 due to the wartime curtailment of enrollment. A faculty will now be assembled for the reopening of the institution in the fall of 1946.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—A delegation of Bryan county and south Georgia citizens is in Washington to urge Secretary of War Patterson to return to the original owners the 280,000-acre tract of land embraced in Camp Stewart, which has now been declared inactive.

GISSIMO, MISSIMO FETE AMERICANS

CHUNGKING, Oct. 16.—(AP) Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek gave a farewell party today for 400 officers and men of 14th Air Force Headquarters, moving soon from Peishihai and Shanghai.

Madame Chiang asked the troops to study more about China on their return home, and told them it would be as fallacious to judge all of China by the back country in which they spent most of their time as it would be to evaluate America by some of its hinterland.

She disclosed also that she was planning to accompany Chiang on his planned trip to the United States, Britain, France and Russia, as soon as his duties permit.

Longino To Speak

J. H. Longino Jr., veteran of World War II, will address a joint meeting of Lyle-Brewster Post and Auxiliary Unit No. 50 at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Legion home on West Harvard avenue, College Park. R. I. Wright, post adjutant, announced.

Bank Clearings

Atlanta banks cleared $25,700,000 yesterday, compared with $29,600,000 on the corresponding day last year, the Atlanta Clearing House Association reports.

The group is prepared to urge that the campsite is no longer needed for war purposes and should be returned to agricultural pursuits.

Before calling on the War Department head to present their case, members of the delegation conferred today with Sen. George and Sen. Russell, both of whom have pledged their co-operation.

MEMBERS OF GROUP

Included in the delegation are U. S. District Attorney Sax Daniels and Assistant District Attorney Henry Durrence, of the southern district; Frank O. Miller, editor of Pembroke; L. O. Rushin, of Glenville; A. H. Croom, of Pembroke, and Clion Mobley, of Glenville.

The group plans to remain here for several days trying to get some decision in the matter.

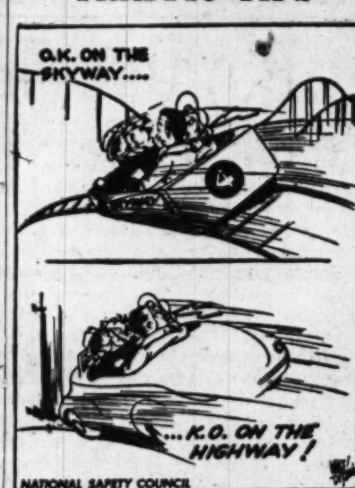

Under an act passed by congress at the time the property was taken over, the government is required to return the acreage to the original owners or their heirs at the price for which it was acquired when it is no longer needed for military purposes, provided no other government agency needs it for special use.

POSSIBLE OBSTACLE

What the south Georgia delegation is afraid of is that either the Department of Agriculture or the Department of Interior may seek to have the acreage transferred to them as a site for an experimental station or a national park.

Acting as spokesman for the group, Editor Miller said it was highly desirable for the property to be returned to its former owners as a means of further developing the agricultural resources of the state.

Arnall Points To Progress in Tax Collecting

Gov. Arnall, speaking last night at a meeting of the Atlanta chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants, reviewed improvements in Georgia's tax system accomplished during his administration.

He pointed to the increased efforts to collect all taxes owed by all people and said this had improved the situation existing in other administrations when a "pass the hat" system of collection had prevailed.

Commenting on the variety of taxes imposed in the state, Arnall said he hoped there would be an eventual consolidation of all Georgia's tax-collecting agencies and a plan for equitable dispersal of the money realized.

Stewards Name Tiller President For Next Year

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
J. Sid Tiller was named last night as president of the Methodist Stewards' Association for the next year, succeeding Nesbit Tilly. Ralph E. Parris was chosen vice president, while Walter L. Richard was named secretary-treasurer, and Ollie Reeves, manager of publicity.

Following the business session Bishop Arthur J. Moore was heard in an address on "Methodism's Tradition as to Evangelism," in which the bishop fully discussed the proposed year of all-out evangelism for Methodists in 1946, the urgent need of religious faith in the world today, and the responsibility and obligation resting upon the church at large to meet that need.

Nearly 1,000 persons attended the association's fall meeting last night at the First Methodist church, where dinner was served by the church women from 6 to 7:30 o'clock. Judge Jesse Wood, Judge Clarence Bell and Dr. J. C. Wardlaw composed the nominating committee. Others taking part in the program were Dr. Lester Rumble, who offered the invocation; Charles F. Hoke, who directed the congregational singing; Ralph E. Parris made the welcome address and Ollie Reeves made response.

Secretary Richard made report as to the year's achievements under the presidency of Nesbit Tilly, and details of the program for 1946 were adopted. The association voted full co-operation in the future in the continuing crusade for Christ.

'SORRY, I BEAT UP THE WRONG MAN'

It was all a mistake, E. B. Stribling, of 1202 Stewart avenue, S. W., told City Recorder A. W. Callaway yesterday in police court as he apologized profusely for beating up the "wrong man."

It was no joke for H. M. Dearwent, a discharged Army veteran, of 500 Peoples street, S. W., who was the surprised victim of Stribling's fists Monday night when Stribling suddenly assaulted him just after Dearwent had departed from a Stewart avenue trolley.

In court Dearwent was forgiving, however, when Stribling again apologized and offered to pay doctor bills. Recorder Callaway let Stribling off with a suspended fine of $27 and the two principals in the case left arm in arm for a doctor's office to get Dearwent patched up.

Briton Cries U. S. Interests Would Corner Atomic Power

By ROBERT DOWSON
LONDON, Oct. 16.—(UP)—Capt. Raymond Blackburn, Laborite member of commons, charged today that certain American interests were trying to use atomic discoveries for an industrial monopoly and said they had rejected the suggestions of British scientists in 1943 that Anglo-American progress on the atom bomb be made known to Russia.

Blackburn spoke after Lord Cherwell, eminent Oxford physicist and wartime confidential scientific adviser to Winston Churchill, had told the house of lords that the atom could not blow up the world—but admitted it might blow up civilization.

Blackburn, in his maiden speech in commons, warned that secrecy would breed only further suspicion and said it would be "futile as well as disastrous to seem to maintain any monopoly of so-called secrets."

RUSSIA SEEKS A-POWER
"Russian scientists, in particular Kapitz and Leipunsky, are at the head of the Nuclear Physics Institute, and are probably working on the same lines and may even have progressed further than ourselves," he said.

British scientists, too, "greatly resent" that they are not informed of what has been happening at factories in the state of Washington where plutonium is being manufactured, Blackburn said.

He said American and British scientists were agreed that there should be complete and open publication of all scientific information relating to atomic energy.

"None of the scientists (in Britain) would have desired... that any industrial monopoly such as the Americans are trying to assert should prevent the great advances which now lie open to all mankind," he said.

HEAVY ELEMENTS
Lord Cherwell said that nuclear disintegration was caused by a heavy element as contrasted to the world mass itself which is composed of 99 per cent light elements.

In a debate on the atom bomb, Lord Cherwell defended the idea of secrecy against the assertion by the Earl of Darnley that the time had come to renounce the policy of "peace through force" because the atom bomb might "disintegrate humanity" and that it was useless to try to keep it secret.

A future aggressor using half a dozen improved bombs might destroy civilization if not the world in five minutes, Lord Darnley said. He urged Britain to lead a move to abandon forceful methods and penalizing or antagonizing clauses in peace treaties.

"It is practically impossible, if not impossible, to keep the secrets of the atomic bomb and its successors, to maintain adequate supervision of its manufacture or to foresee or prevent its use," Lord Darnley said.

"It is not more than an even chance against the world being blown up in the next generation by some so-called patriotic scientist."

Lord Cherwell said that certain scientific principles would be as true in 1950 as they are today. He added that "loose talk" about atomic energy was dangerous not only as regards its destructive future benefits.

Discovery of a new sort of energy, he said, did not mean that a new era of prosperity was just around the corner. It took years of research and huge sums of money to produce the bomb, he said, and it might take equal time and money to bring atomic energy into practical use.

When Lord Cherwell said it was foolish to talk about sharing the secret of the bomb because its principles were so well known to scientists, Lord Strabolgi asked: "Then what did President Truman mean when he said it was American policy not to share the secret?"

THE "KNOW HOW"
The President meant the "know how," Lord Cherwell said, and he compared the bomb to the airplane. All engineers knew the principle of flight, but it took expert designers and instructors to make planes fly.

"One cannot speak of sharing this secret unless one is talking the plants to other countries along with the hundreds of scientists and thousands of engineers who developed it," Lord Cherwell said.

There are real dangers involved in exploiting the forces of nature, he continued, especially since enormous improvements may be made soon.

"There is no fear of the world blowing up," Lord Cherwell said, "but civilization as we know it may be destroyed."

Jury Indicts Donald Cook, 16, On Murder Charge

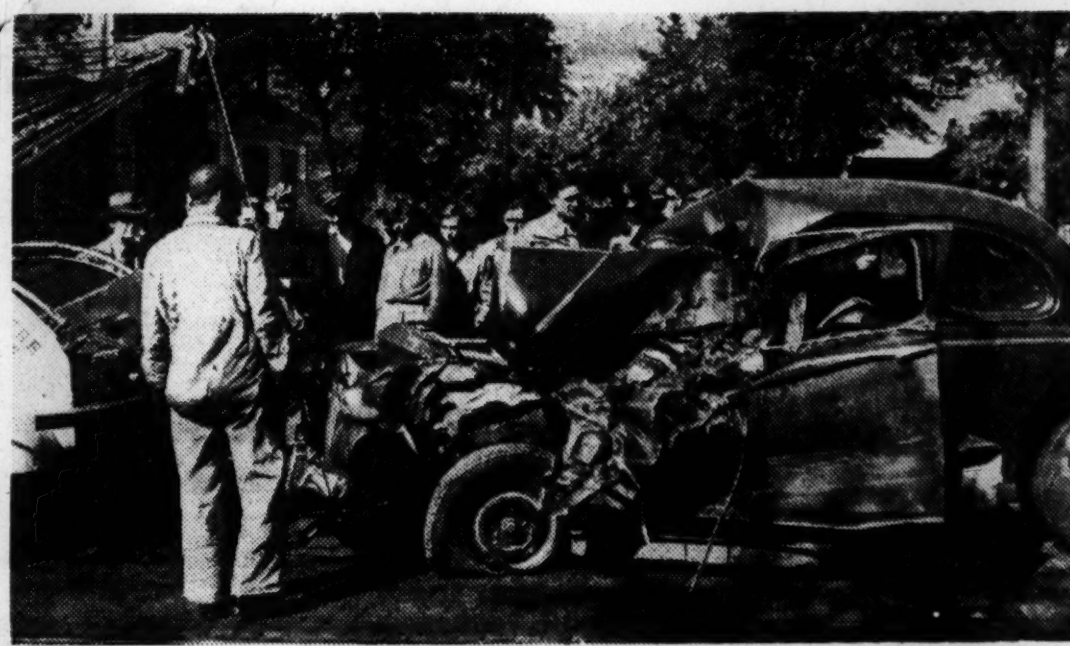

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Sixteen-year-old Donald J. Cook today was reported named by the grand jury in a true bill charging him with murdering his pal, Morton Stein, also 16, in the Stevens hotel last May.

Lt. Philip Breitke of the homicide squad said earlier that Cook, arrested in New Orleans last week, had confessed he stabbed Stein and left the body in the hotel room with a "do not disturb" sign on the door.

Breitke said Cook declared he stabbed Stein when the youth attacked him with a hunting knife and a blackjack. Stein's attack, Breitke said Cook told him, was precipitated when Cook refused to join in plans for robbing a Chicago jewelry store.

War Fund Drive

CARROLLTON, Ga., Oct. 16.—The 1945 United War Fund campaign is making good progress in Carroll county under the leadership of Dr. Perry N. Huff and Billy Morrow, co-chairmen. Quotas of $1,000 have been assigned to Bowdoin and Villa Rica with Carrollton and the rest of Carroll county to raise the balance.

WRECKED CAR—Here is the damaged automobile driven by an Atlanta woman after it crashed into a parked truck on Gordon street yesterday, according to police.

2 Are Injured As Auto Strikes Parked Truck

An automobile which crashed into a parked Georgia Power Company truck at 1134 Gordon street yesterday afternoon resulted in injuries to a power company employee and the woman driver of the automobile which was practically demolished in the collision.

Radio Patrolmen D. C. Taylor and W. J. Smith, investigating the accident, identified the woman driver as Mrs. E. L. Davis, 30, of 1228 Holly street, N. W., who was taken to a private doctor and later removed to a private hospital for treatment of head and facial lacerations and a possible fractured ankle.

The injured crewman of the power company truck is C. B. Waters, 54, of Rock Springs road, who was taken to Grady Hospital for emergency treatment and surgery. Waters suffered severe bruising and lacerations of the face and head.

Patrolmen Taylor and Smith said Mrs. Davis was driving into town when she lost control of her car and crashed into the parked truck where the power company employees were cutting tree limbs away from a trolley line.

The officers quoted her as saying she was hurrying to keep an appointment with a doctor when the accident occurred.

Mitchell Leaves Today To Survey Bombing Damage

William E. Mitchell, president of the Georgia Power Company and the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will leave Atlanta this morning for the Orient to make his second study of the effect of strategic bombing operations on enemy power plants and other electrical facilities.

Going by plane to the west coast and thence across the Pacific, he will join other members of the United States Strategic Bombing Survey designated by the President to report on the damage done by Allied aerial attacks to war production installations in enemy areas. He expects this mission will require until early December to complete.

During the late spring and early summer of this year Mitchell made a similar study of damage to electric power facilities in areas held by the Nazis during the course of the European war in France, Italy and Germany. As in the former survey, he again heads the utilities section.

The information obtained will be reported to the War Department for use as a source of study by Army and Navy personnel and students of military science in providing protection for this country against attack in the future.

The ceremony was held in Gen. Marshall's office and attended by several high ranking officers and Vladimir Hurban, Czechoslovakian ambassador and Mrs. Hurban.

MAILBOX FOUND UNDER MAN'S BED

City Detective J. L. Moseley and Detective Lt. D. L. Taylor arrested John E. Knight, 30, of a Grant street, S. E., address, on a charge of stealing the locked mailbox from Oakland cemetery.

Moseley and Lt. Taylor said they found the mailbox, with the lock pried off, under Knight's bed. The box had contained two checks addressed to the cemetery caretaker.

United States Commissioner David S. Meyerhardt yesterday bound Knight over to the federal district court, charged with defrauding the government and larceny of mail. He was placed under $500 bond.

Stone Mountain 'Debt to South'—Mayor to UDC

If ever there was a debt owed to the south, it was the completion of the Confederate memorial on Stone Mountain, Mayor Hartsfield said as he asked the United Daughters of the Confederacy to make certain that Stone Mountain is used for no other purpose than a memorial to the Confederacy.

The Atlanta mayor spoke last night before the opening session of a three-day convention of the Georgia division of the UDC at the Biltmore hotel.

"Hundreds of thousands of dollars were raised," he said, "from school children in the south, from Confederate veterans and from other southerners for the purpose of a memorial. That money got away somehow, and the memorial was left unfinished.

"I would like to see the state of Georgia raise the money for its completion—I don't want a dime of federal money used on the project. I want it carved, owned and operated by people in the south."

Hartsfield spoke of some of the injustices which the south has suffered—not only following the War Between the States, but today. The south has not been given economic equality with other sections of the country, he said.

However, he predicted that the future will find a more tolerant feeling toward the south by the north as a result of the mass migrations of northern workers and troops here during World War II.

Having lived here these people will be more aware of actual conditions and prospects in this section.

Hartsfield was introduced by Mrs. Belmont Dennis, president of the Georgia division of the UDC.

Mrs. Dennis made a short address of welcome to those attending the convention this year, which marks the 50th anniversary of the Georgia chapter.

History of the Georgia division of the UDC was related by Mrs. L. Cary Bittick, of Forsyth, state historian.

An address by Gov. Arnall and the observance of historical evening will highlight tonight's program of the golden jubilee convocation. Mrs. James F. Crouse will be marshal for historical evening.

All U. S. Wounded Returned: Stark Hospital Now Surplus

All wounded soldiers have been returned from Europe, Brig. Gen. Robert McDonald, surgeon, Fourth Service Command, Atlanta, revealed yesterday, and hospital ships no longer ply the Atlantic.

Stark General hospital, Charleston, where all the most seriously wounded men were debarked, has been cleared of patients. It has been declared surplus and will be turned over to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for disposition.

Approximately 100,000 seriously wounded men were filtered through Stark General, an average of 5,000 a month, Brig. Gen. McDonald said. "Many times, however, the total reached 7,000 and 8,000 a month."

The wounded men were brought back from North Africa, from Italy, from France and Germany in 29 hospital ships. These ships are now being used to bring liberated prisoners home from Japan.

Ambulatory patients came home from Europe on transport ships and were sent directly to general hospitals throughout the country. More wounded men came through the debarkation hospital in Charleston during June of this year than in any other month, Brig. Gen. McDonald said.

After V-E day, they started sending all the wounded home as fast as they could in order to release the ships to transport troops to the Pacific," he said.

"We would always feel the impact of a battle about two months after it was over," he said. "After the Battle of the Bulge in December, casualties came pouring into Charleston in February. There were fewer casualties after we crossed the Rhine."

When the wounded men reached Stark General, they were given what medical care they needed immediately, given clothes, food and back pay and then sent to one of the 66 general hospitals in the country by hospital train.

Edy told The Constitution he expects to see Atlanta on his visit, and while he believed the manager plan of government was a worthwhile endeavor, he did not promote the plan.

He will explain the practical operations of the plan to the Men's Council of the Atlanta League of Women's Voters at 12:30 p. m. Friday at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Following this address he will speak at 5 p. m. at the Georgia Tech commencement exercises.

Technicality Frees Traffic Offender

Howard Farmer, 23, who remained in the city stockade for more than 30 days after he was sentenced in recorder's court on 14 traffic violations, yesterday was released after Judge Bond Almand, of the Fulton superior court, granted a writ of habeas corpus.

Farmer was sentenced by Recorder Luke Arnold to serve 30 days on eight of the cases; 10 days on five of the charges, and four days on one charge.

Since the sentences were not marked "to follow," Judge Almand ruled that the sentences should be considered served under a supreme court decision, and ordered Farmer's release.

Ga. Police Capture Insane Criminal

Fred J. Bartik, who was admitted to the institution in 1942, was apprehended at Climax, Ga., late today.

Still at large are Victor Licate, Tampa; Woodrow George, convicted of armed robbery in Hillsborough county, and Edgar Swanson, Palm Beach county arsonist.

This morning's schedule includes an address by Gov. Arnall, and tomorrow morning the secretary and treasurer of the National Association of Postmasters, Frank Horak, Oconto, Wis., will be principal speakers.

USES Gets Ready For Returning Vets

Anticipating peak discharges from the armed forces within the next few months, the 242 United States Employment Service offices in this region are "expanding and improving" job placement services for veterans.

Dillard B. Lasseter, regional director for the southeast, estimated yesterday that close to 800,000 veterans from this section will be discharged by July, 1946, placing an unprecedented load on USES offices. Under the GI Bill of Rights, the agency has been given definite responsibilities for enabling veterans to fit back into private employment—such as referral and placement of veterans who do not return to preinduction jobs, job counseling and provision of information on work opportunities both in the veterans' home communities and other parts of the country.

Already applications from veterans have "sharply increased during the past month," he added, with a total of 25,695 ex-service applicants in the six southeastern states.

Student Conference Set for November 15

At a meeting of the Atlanta Tuberculosis association and the Columbia Scholastic Press Project committee announcement was made of the Student Press Conference, which will be held at 3 p. m. Thursday, November 15, at the Academy of Medicine.

At the conference Dr. Eugene A. Stead, Jr., dean of the school of medicine at Emory University; Dr. C. C. Aven, member of the board of directors of the Atlanta Tuberculosis association; and Wright Bryan, editor of the Atlanta Journal, will address approximately 350 student newspaper editors and staff members.

Topics for the 1945 student writers project, sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press and the National Tuberculosis association, are "Tuberculosis Control is a Problem for All Nations" and "How Christmas Seals Protect the Health of Our Community." Some 30 school newspapers from junior and senior high schools of Atlanta, Decatur, Fulton and DeKalb counties have enrolled.

The Emergency Is Not Over

Parliament has voted to extend Britain's wartime economic controls for another five years.

The British, impoverished by the war, realize their monetary system could never survive a period of uncontrolled inflation. They are determined to take no chances.

In the United States, on the other hand, we are lifting controls with an abandon which is already proving disastrous.

Strikes are breaking out all over the country and a nation-wide production shutdown is threatened for the simple reason that the War Labor Board was by-passed and its Little Steel formula junked before a yardstick for reconversion pay increases had been decided upon.

Similarly, there is real danger that the badly needed housing boom will not materialize simply because, in deference to powerful pressure groups, ceilings on home construction prices have been lifted and new houses bid fair to be priced off the market.

There are other examples. But these two will suffice. The point is that we are going merrily along blowing up the levies which during the war years have protected us from the raging floods of inflation.

Moreover, the strange part about all this is that it is being done despite the objection of the overwhelming majority of the nation's industrial leaders.

This is demonstrated by an OPA survey which shows that only 12 per cent of the nation's businessmen favor de-control of prices before the end of this year, with 39 per cent favoring retention of price controls even after the scheduled demise of OPA on July first of next year.

The survey was made by sending 7,300 industrialists a questionnaire, asking: "When can all ceilings on prices be safely removed without the risk of temporary general inflation and subsequent depression?" The answers:

Now—6%.
Jan. 1—6%.
July 1, 1946—29%.
After July 1, 1946—39%.
No opinion—20%.

It is also interesting, incidentally, to note that more than half thought controls should be kept on the other fellow's business longer than on their own; and that building materials, food, clothing, rent and durable consumer goods were listed, in the order named, as those upon which controls would be needed the longest.

Despite this evidence of public realization of the need, however, more and more anti-inflation controls are being eliminated prematurely.

Certainly no one argues that we should retain such emergency measures as long as the British intend to. But who is there to say, looking at the present plight of the inflation-beset consumer, that the emergency is entirely over?

Unattractive Journalism

It was to be expected. Yet it is none the less distasteful.

American journalism in Paris is turning loose its sob sisters on one of the blackest characters of the war—Pierre Laval, executed as the traitor he was.

Yet all the sob stuff written about this always unscrupulous man will not wipe out the sobs of thousands of his own countrymen who were sent by him on forced labor to Germany, of those who were tortured and killed by his police, of the French underground heroes who were hunted down like animals because they opposed Germany.

No last gesture of "Vive La France" can wipe out the oft-repeated words, "I hope for a German victory."

No final words about "his country" can remove the fact he formed a legion of Frenchmen to fight in German uniforms for Germany.

The French bungled the trial and Laval, shrewd as always, managed to capitalize on the farcical conduct of his trial.

But the blackness of Laval's guilt remains.

The Menace of the Rats

Among other objectives named by city council in giving approval to the addition of 27 new employees to the city payroll, is the eradication of the rats which, in some sections, constitute a dangerous menace to human health and life.

The rat is known to be a carrier of disease, notably typhus. Many of the most lethal epidemics, plagues, which have decimated city populations throughout history are traceable to the rats which swarm in the dark recesses of old buildings, in the sewers, etc., of the city.

That Atlanta has too many rats has long been known to our health authorities. Within recent months there have been instances of rats biting sleeping children in their beds.

Through the years there have been, sporadically, campaigns against the rat as an enemy to health. Each has been, in varying degrees, partially successful.

However, to keep the city free of rats, after they have been eliminated, calls for constant vigilance. A successful anti-rat campaign can never be ended. The rats must first be destroyed and then the fight must continue to keep them from returning.

In the ideal city of the future there will be no rats. It is to be hoped Atlanta can, in this respect at least, quickly approach more nearly to realization of that ideal city we all envisage.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Subways

Editor Constitution: The obvious reason for Atlanta's traffic snarl is the tramway and bus service downtown. That fact can be ascertained by brief observation at any time. The fact also remains that this tramway service is also essential to the public in general.

My question is as follows and remains a possible progressive solution to your provoking problem: "Is the city of Atlanta ready for a subway system?"

I believe it is! EMIL SILIN, Atlanta.

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.

the physical, mental and mechanical wear.

The federal and state road signs on such highways could be moved to some other appropriate streets where tourists would see more of our city.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN, Atlanta.

Street Cars

Editor Constitution: When will the heavy, slow-moving, lumbering street cars be removed from the center of the streets of Atlanta, as many, many other cities have found necessary to do in order to speed up and make way for movement of general traffic?

Concerning all the poppycock and subterfuge as to Atlanta's traffic situation, you know full well that the said lumbering, slow-moving street cars are responsible for 90 per cent of all traffic jams on the streets of downtown Atlanta, and not nary a word to that effect has been mentioned. We have stop lights in Atlanta to control speed of traffic but when stop light says "go" now the street cars say "you can't go now" and "ain't" bumping about parked cars, when the parked cars are on the side of the curb where they should be parked, and with the old lumbering street cars blocking movements from all directions?

WILLIE DUNN, Atlanta.

Too Many Stops

Editor Constitution: I have observed that traffic in New York city is speeded up by permitting uptown buses to stop at only every fourth block, more or less. Perhaps, if street cars and buses here were permitted, to load and unload only at every second, third, or fourth downtown intersection, chosen with view to using safety lanes to permit auto traffic to continue during such stops, and to facilitate "rear loading" by power company representatives, traffic in general here in Atlanta could be improved in the downtown area.

(Name withheld by request.)

Half Truths

Editor Constitution: An error in your editorial, "Congress Wants New Anti-Strike Act," pointed out the uselessness of the unfortunate Smith-Connelly act.

You say that the act "calls for a strike vote and a strike only if members vote for it." Only half of this is true. The act does make a vote mandatory. However, once the vote is taken, the law is complied with. After that, whether a majority voted for a strike or not, a strike can be called.

What you need for stable labor relations is good faith and common sense on both sides. You can't get these by passing laws. You especially fall short when the laws are, as the Smith-Connelly act was, passed in an attempt to find a club to beat labor with.

KENNETH DOUITY, Georgia state director, Textile Workers' Union of America, CIO.

A Good Citizen Comes Back Home

We went off to a corner of the officers' club at Camp Amirabad, on the outskirts of Teheran, and talked . . . Anna Kinach and I.

Her story is one which demonstrates once more that truth is stranger than fiction.

For a number of years before the war her Polish-born father and mother had toiled and slaved on a small truck farm outside Savannah (Ga.) and managed to keep going also a window cleaning business.

There was 15 years of this. Then Demetri Kinach sold out and moved to Greenville, S. C. After five years of that . . . Anna recalls—she heard her father saying many times he wanted to go back to Poland to live out the rest of his years. He had a little money saved to get him started and keep him going.

The 10-year-old Anna heard that and remembered it. In 1928 they moved back to Poland . . . and a small farm in eastern Poland.

But history was in the making and Adolf Hitler was making hysterical speeches about Poland. There were just 10 fearful years and Anna, 20 years old, had lived through the terror of Poland's defeat, and come face to face with the fact that Russia and Germany had signed a peace pact.

Other events happened swiftly. Russia demanded—and got—a slice of Poland—eastern Poland. On that slice was the small Kinach home.

The Russians moved out the population. No one knew why, except the Russians. They were preparing a corridor there for the war with Germany they knew was in the future.

The Poles went to Siberia. There they all lived in barracks and worked. Anna Kinach worked in a glass factory. She worked for two years in the forests, cutting timber. When I tell you she is a small girl you will understand what that meant.

I recall she held out her hands. They still were hard and calloused from that work. "I have done work you would not believe," she said, simply. And I believed her.

Everyone liked this young Polish girl. They called her "Georgia." She went to work in the officers' mess as a waitress. Her personality and intelligence soon made it possible for her to become a sort of hostess or headwaitress in charge of the others.

In her off hours she worked for the Red Cross, without charge, learning to type and do office work. She read. She learned to speak good English.

Her job paid for her room and board and 1,600 rials per month. A rial is worth about three cents. A pair of poor shoes cost 600 rials in Teheran.

She, being a citizen, could have got a visa at any time to go home. But she would not leave her mother. "You can stand for her," they used to argue. "No," she would say. And that ended it.

On The Way Now Anna and her mother are on the long way home from Teheran. They will go to a small town in Missouri, Weber Grove, where Maj. John Versnel's family is waiting to receive them and get them a place to work and live. He guaranteed they would not become public charges.

The officers paid in $550 to a fund collected by the Catholic chaplain at the post. Anna added $150 she had saved out of the pittance of pay she had received.

Anna Kinach is 27 years of age. She is going to get a job and go to school at night.

It makes me glad to know she is coming back to America, her country. There won't be a citizen in it who loves it any more than she. To her it always has meant something more than just a country. It is something magnificent and grand. There is almost a religious regard for this country in the heart of Anna Kinach.

She will make a fine American, the young lady to whom so great a share of terror and hardship and bitterness has been given—and who never let it break her spirit or her belief that some day she would win out.

It is a long way from Savannah to Siberia, to Teheran, Iran and back to America. But she has made it.

There are sales conferences, problem discussions, luncheons and dinners with local prominent and with their own local staffs. There is, maybe, a round of golf sandwiched in, somewhere, at one of Atlanta's famous golf clubs.

And, after a strenuous round of such engagements, the "big shot" move on to their next place of call in their nationwide organization.

I intend there is one item on said schedules that is usually overlooked and should, by all means, be included. That is a day, or at least an hour or two, of freedom for the visitors. A time when there are no conferences, luncheons, banquets or golf games prearranged. When the "big shot" should be allowed to wander around, footloose and, unless he prefers otherwise, by himself.

So that he can contact, just personally, any local friends and enjoy a little rest from the scheduled round.

Even if it required a day longer to the visit, it would be worth it in many ways.

Means Nothing Suppose you, an Atlantan, have a good friend who is one of these top executives and who lives elsewhere. You hear he is coming to Atlanta for a visit, a regular visit to his firm's local branch. You think, for a pleasurable moment, you are going to see the good old guy once again, have a good visit with him, maybe entertain him—just the few of you—at a good lunch place. But you think that way only for a moment. Then disagreeable old experience reminds you of previous visits of the same nature and you know the most you can hope for, in contacts with your old friend, is a five-minute phone call, sandwiched in between the speech of the general sales manager and the announcement of the firm's reconversion program.

Take, for example, Mr. Oscar Doob. Oscar Doob is head of the advertising department for Loew theaters. His office is in New York.

Whenever I, or any member of my family, go to New York Oscar is the guy who sees to it we have as much fun as possible. He is the fellow who sends around tickets to the hit shows of the season. Or the big game or sports event. He is the guy who sends to your hotel a message you know is sincere, telling you just to phone his office if there is anything—anything at all—in New York for which you hanker. If it can be gotten, he'll get it.

And the guy who insists on taking you to Sardi's for lunch and to the Astor bar for cocktails. And so on.

Oscar Comes to Atlanta Then, some day, you hear Oscar is coming to Atlanta. You really like him and you hope there'll be a chance to repay, just fractionally, all the kindnesses he has shown when you were the visitor in his home town.

Well, he was here for the premiere of "Gone With the Wind." I spoke with him for about two minutes at the cocktail party given for the stars at the Georgian Terrace. No time for anything else.

He has been here on other occasions. What with all that scheduled program stuff I'm lucky to hear his voice over the telephone. Once per visit.

He was here this week. He phoned Monday, while I was out and he said that he would phone again, later, provided he got out of a meeting in time.

Such fragmentary contacts are woefully unsatisfactory. And the case of Oscar Doob and myself is but one out of many. Other old friends visit Atlanta under similar conditions and the result is the same.

Can't it be arranged that, for three hours or so, these good guys can be released from the shackles of the scheduled round? I'd like to have a good, unrestricted gossip with Oscar. But I know it is hopeless when he is in Atlanta, just a few blocks away. I'll have to go to New York to catch a glimpse of his face.

Conciliation The Answer

Nearly all men are men of good will, to whom the voice from Heaven promised peace on earth.

Heels are few and far between. They seem to be everywhere, just as a single skunk pervades the whole neighborhood, but that is because they are made conspicuous by contrast with the normal.

Many men of good will are called heels, but investigation shows they are ordinarily decent guys who happen to be on the other side, and may have been driven to unseemly behavior by opposition they considered unreasonable.

The job of the conciliator or peacemaker is to keep men of good will from acting like heels.

It is an art that requires patience, tact, self-control, dignity, natural kindness, courage, a strong sense of justice, and above all an understanding of human nature born of experience or genius.

The Indians knew long ago that the surest way to calm a man who seemed bent on warfare was to persuade him to talk. The conciliator knows this, but he also knows it is equally important to prevent the wrong kind of talk.

When he calls upon a man of good will whose interests have conflicted with another's, his first concern is to prevent any big fight talk or threat or challenge, or any angry and boastful commitment.

The aggrieved man must not say: "He's got to come to my terms or I'll break him if it takes every cent I've got." He may feel that way, and get over it; but if he commits himself publicly, pride will not let him back down.

Once the quarrel reaches this stage, both contestants may act like heels. For each will think only of proving himself right; will ignore all evidence except that which supports him; and will cultivate a biased mental attitude that blinds him to reason and justice and common sense. Even a just grievance, nursed in wrath, becomes a malicious grudge that adorns the mind like a poison.

The conciliator must reach the battlefield while the contestants are still men of good will.

The employer, unless he is a heel, has no desire to work people at starvation wages.

The worker, unless he is a heel, has no desire to ruin the employer by demanding more than the business can pay.

Since both are likely to be men of good will, what we need is a conciliation service that will show them, by evidence rather than argument, what is possible and fair and reasonable.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

NO DEAD ISSUES

(Tifton Gazette)

House Speaker Roy Harris, candidate for Governor, says that he considers the move to lift the ban on a governor succeeding himself so that Ellis Arnall can run again a "dead issue." Another case, apparently of the wish being father to the thought. There are no dead issues in Georgia politics; when the race gets warm, candidates will dig up most anything for the campaign, whether it be truth, half-truth, or just plain falsehood.

WHY WORRY? (Banks County Journal)

Automobile strikes are threatened all over the country. What if it? Too many autos in this country now. If all the plants were closed down a few more years we would be better off. Fewer people killed and crippled.

Conn'll Try Anything Twice—for a Price

Joe Louis has signed to meet Billy Conn next June.

Unless the Argentine revolution picks up steam in the meantime, this will be the first major battle of the peace.

Thus, disillusioned in its quest for a brave new world, humanity turns again to its other search—that for a new white hope.

Fight fans are glad that hostilities have ceased and Louis and Conn are back in their respective corners. Those wartime substitutes, Tommy Dorsey and Jon Hall, never caught on somehow.

Also glad to be back are Louis and Conn. It is far better to fight each other at three million dollars a night than to fight several million of the enemy at fifty dollars a month.

Louis knocked Conn awinding when last they met back in 1941. "But," say Conn fans, "Joe's four years older now."

Where do they think Billy-boy's been—on ice?

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Laval Got Justice But Justice Didn't

WASHINGTON.—No one will bemoan the fate of Pierre Laval, the arch Vichyite who met a traitor's death at the hands of a French firing squad.

Laval was the sinister influence behind the sorry collaborationist regime of Marshal Petain, himself condemned to death as a traitor only to have his sentence commuted to life imprisonment because of his age and former service to the French people.

He came to an ignominious end. As perhaps the most hated of all Frenchmen. No one can say that he did not get his honest deserts.

But while approving the sentence imposed upon him, the world can scarcely applaud the methods of French justice used in bringing him to trial.

The proceedings were a fanciful farce throughout, with the defendant not even present much of the time at his own trial. In the United States such methods would not be tolerated for an instant, not even in the case of the lowest criminal.

The world was treated to the spectacle of the trial jury hurling insults and threats at the accused in a manner to make a mockery of justice. Thus, Laval was referred to as "swine" by members of the jury, while other members openly taunted him with the promise that he would be shot within a fortnight.

Barrel-Head Justice There was about the proceedings much regard of the processes of justice that characterized the barrel-head courts of the French revolution, under which the crowned heads and others were executed by the guillotine.

The ends of justice could have been met in the same way by the employment of more orderly methods. As it is, the concept of French justice suffers an irreparable injury.

Gen. De Gaulle, head of the French provisional government, must have been guided by considerations of expediency in refusing a review of Laval's sentence. The former French premier's crimes were so flagrant and violent there could be no question of his guilt.

And so Gen. De Gaulle probably reasoned that the most expedient thing to do under the circumstances was to let the sentence stand without going through the fanfare of another trial. It was inevitable that he would be condemned and executed in the end.

Laval Record For Laval had come to be recognized as the epitome of the Quislings, that group of traitors who went over to the Nazis during the period of German ascendancy in Europe. More than Quisling himself, he was the chief collaborationist in all Europe.

Most of the sins of the aged Marshal Petain may be attributed to the evil influence of Laval's cunning. He played the Nazi game to the extent of throwing obstacles in the path of the Allies at every turn.

An opportunist of the worst sort, he gambled on the Germans winning the war. For four years he sat as the dictator of France, functioning as Hitler's despised henchman. The death decrees of thousands of Frenchmen were signed under his direction. Other hundreds of thousands of his countrymen were deported to Germany as slave labor under his consent and guidance.

When American and British forces landed in North Africa as the prelude to the liberation of France, he ordered French Colonial troops to fire on us and defend the colonies against the invasion.

Later, also, he permitted the French fleet to be destroyed at Toulon rather than have it delivered into the hands of the Allies, as France was pledged to do under the terms of its agreement with the British.

His record as a traitor to his country is about as miserable as can be found in the entire history of France. Now fate has finally caught up with him, just as it did with the blustering, clowning Mussolini—with Hitler and Tojo and the rest of the sorry lot.

The world will not pity his passing. It can only condemn the sordid method of his trial. French justice would have been served far better had he been accorded the orderly processes of the law.

OLLIE REEVES

Just a Rhyme a Day

"HACKENSACK, N. J.—Historic 199-year-old house where Washington slept, and from which he directed retreat across New Jersey, is being levelled to make way for a movie theater."—News item.

We like to practice tolerance, but we cannot condone the acts of those who fail to leave our histories alone. We struggled through the grammar school and mastered names and dates. Of heroes on the battlefields and how they met their fates. We read about George Washington, so bright and wide awake. The way he wouldn't tell a lie for anybody's sake. And now, in later years, we find when he was in his prime. He occupied a thousand beds and slept most of the time. And how could he explain the nights which he spent out at town. Unless he fibbed a little bit to quiet Martha down. But Washington has gone away and we shall know the thrill. Of bedroom scenes done in the mode of Cecil B. DeMille. Where actresses, in negligees of silk and slinky sheen. Display entrancing silhouettes upon the silver screen. Provoking the erotic urge with many sex appeals. Which put the patrons in the aisles for six or seven reels. And that brings up the thought, as some illiterate has said. He never should have made a move, "he should have stood in bed."

It Does No Good To Deny Them

I felt a little let down when, on being liberated from a Jap prison, Col. Devereux, commander on Wake Island, denied that he had ever cracked, "Send us more Japs." However, after thinking the matter over, I have decided that we must all ignore the denial and send the crack on down to posterity along with all the other imperishable cracks which our heroes have denied making, but which are ringing through history just the same. I think this is as it should be. We need those cracks to stimulate the spirit of the nation. The way I look at it, the cracks were not made, they should have been, because they improve, or at least embellish, the facts.

Surely you will not deny that Gen. Pershing's visit to the tomb of Lafayette in World War I is made more symbolic by the remark, "Lafayette, we are here," which Pershing denied making.

But I am sure posterity will remember the remark not the denial, just as it will remember Col. Whittlesy, commander of the Lost Battalion, shouted "go to hell" to the Germans' command to surrender in World War I, and will ignore Whittlesy's statement that he said nothing at all.

UNDER SOMEWHAT similar circumstances in the late unpleasantness, we saw MacArthur's "nuts" answer and I am pleased to report that this one is wholly untarnished by denial. Not that it would make any difference if it was as far as posterity is concerned; only it is nice to have one on which we do not have to do any studied ignoring, as on Marine Sgt. Dan Daly's "Come on, you sonsabods, do you want to live forever?" which he yelled to his men in the Battle of Belleau Wood in the other war.

Of course, Carlyle attributed it to Frederick the Great long before Daly was born, but I think

To Picket Churches?

NEW YORK.—One of the news photographs published last week showed vandalism at a place of worship in New York with the clergyman contemplating a smashed window.

Many other photographs showed bloodshed and fist fights on the so-called picket line at Warner Brothers' studio in Hollywood. It is very wrong to throw missiles through church windows but equally wrong and unlawful to throw bricks and rocks through factory windows and the windshields of automobiles. And if rioters, politely known as pickets, have been to blockade industrial premises to prevent Americans from going to their lawful work they have an equal right to blockade any church in the United States and beat up or threaten members of the congregation on their way to worship.

THE TERRORISM of union pickets at factories, however, also is a police problem, but bad mayors, from moral cowardice and recreant to their oaths, and state governors, as well, for 10 years have been in the habit of picking riot leaders and bargaining with them to desist. Not yet have they been faced with any problem of quelling mob attacks on religious persons on their way to worship, but if church very easily could be "struck" by some organization calling itself a union which then, according to this dangerous precedent, would be justified in picketing the church, stoning the windows, desecrating the altars and other properties of religion and slugging the faithful.

At a recent Communist demonstration in New York, attended by a number of typical vain, pretentious and politically ignorant actors, one of the speeches denounced the Catholic church in Spain as "a rich monopolist at the expense of mass poverty."

ACCORDING to the familiar logic of revolutionary unionism and mob terror, that means that all Catholic churches are "unfair" and subject to the same conduct that has been directed against factories. Our mayors and governors rarely concern themselves with the truth or merits of charges of "unfairness." Indeed, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt once refused to go to a play because Jimmy Cagney's union had picketed the front of the theater.

It is to be regretted that we cannot record the saltier war utterances of "Bull" Halsey, the great sea warrior, "Blood and Guts" Patton, or of "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, whose laconic description of a military defeat has never been equalled by any general or writer. That was when he was run out of Burma by the Japs, though what "Vinegar Joe" said has been "cleansed up" to "they kicked my pants out of Burma."

I think that is more characteristically the language of the modern fighting men than MacArthur's oratoricality. Knowing MacArthur, however, most of what he says for posterity will be what he says for posterity while other officers add lib their remarks, so to speak. They pop off whatever comes into their minds. But the trouble with that is you cannot pass it uncensored on to posterity.

MACARTHUR goes back oratorically more to Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman who is credited with the most famous line on war in all history—"War is hell." But Sherman did not say it in time of war. He said it in an address to the Michigan Military Academy, June 19, 1879, according to the best authorities, in the following manner:

"I am tired and sick of war. Its glory is all moonshine. It is only those who have neither fired a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for blood, more vengeance, more desolation. War is hell."

I think in the years to come, after MacArthur has passed from the scene and his haters are silenced, the armed service oratory on this war that will be remembered when all other has been forgotten will be his speech on board the Missouri at the surrender ceremony.

WHAT IS a picket line? For six years, in Chicago, pickets patrolled the Edgewater Beach hotel, winter and summer, because William Dewey, the manager, refused to rent an apartment to a union racketeer named Umbrella Mike Boyle, of the Electricians' Union, long ago denounced by the court of appeals and sent to prison on as a betrayer of labor. The pickets were not strikers but were, most of them, destitute persons hired at miserable wages to walk post. In winter, sometimes, Mr. Dewey got them hot and cold, but he refused to parley with Boyle and finally Boyle gave up and withdrew them.

ONCE AGAIN the Daughters of the American Revolution are in controversy because they refused to make available their hall in Washington for a performance by a Negro woman, represented as a musician. Their hall may be picketed and their national headquarters, too, on the ground that the Constitution Hall is "tax-exempt" and therefore "is a public institution."

Every church in the United States is tax exempt and on the same basis should be made freely available to any live piano player from any drinking resort, and, in the event of refusal may be picketed, and the pastor's home as well.

Albert Has Learned To Beat the System

I asked my friend, Albert, why he was sitting around the store these days when there was so much tractor work to be done. "I have quit tractor," said Albert, "it's too hard and there's too much of it." I then inquired as to his new plans for keeping the wolf from the door. "Pick cotton 'til Christmas and farm next year," he answered. Speculating on the reasons which would cause a healthy farm hand to give up the interesting work of farming with tractor equipment and go back to tenant farming, I was impelled to ask him several additional questions.

It developed that he was living on a farm, rent free, the owner having moved to town some years ago. Albert and his family remained on and looked after the farm in exchange for rent. The "look after" extended to the point of living in the house, keeping a cow and calf in the pasture, a pig in the pen and a small garden. There was a wood lot and a well.

"ARE YOU PLANNING to buy the place where you're living?" "No, I'm not planning to buy any place. A farmer can't do any good on his own place. It's better to farm the other fellow's place. Picked off this fertility in his plot, Albert gave us the story in full.

It is an astounding tale; it is a true tale and it will give small comfort to the absentee landlord. In substance it is this: Albert will live off the land—the other people's land—and will live well, yet with a minimum of work and without any responsibility. One landowner moves to town and rather than have his dwelling house burned down or rot down, he lets Albert use it, rent free. This gives Albert a base with water and wood, meat and milk. With this backing he can turn down undesirable jobs. From this vantage point, he can choose the land he will farm. He knows from experience how much fertility is left in one piece of ground and, having taken off this fertility in his plot, Albert can choose the land he will farm. He knows from experience how much fertility is left in one piece of ground and, having taken off this fertility in his plot, Albert can choose the land he will farm. He knows from experience how much fertility is left in one piece of ground and, having taken off this fertility in his plot, Albert can choose the land he will farm.

He has been watching various farmers build their lands and he knows which land is now best suited to his purposes. He tells me that it pays to change landlords every three years, for by that time some other farmer has his land in a better state of fertility than the one he is leaving. Albert says, "Moving over to the good land every three years doesn't take any time. All I use is a little soda. When you use guano, you're working for the landowner."

WELL, THAT'S the story. It's shocking in a way and yet we can't blame Albert. In the race between landlord and tenant for the soil's fertility, the Alberts of the world have of necessity learned how to beat the system. When the landlord has been starved out and has departed, the Alberts have it their own way. "The lessons you teach me, I will learn," says Shylock. "And I will better the instruction."

We can learn many lessons from the Alberts. One is that we are wasting time and effort and making ourselves ridiculous in trying to change over the Alberts at long range. So long as we stay in Atlanta or any other county seat and let our lands lie out, Albert and his kinsmen will graze on new ground to new ground, as fancy dictates. We are thus working for Albert and not Albert for us. And in time, he will destroy both of us.

Farming is a way of life; not merely an investment. It is a place to live; not merely a place to work. Most of the problems which stump the absentee farmer melt away once the owner and the owner's family live on the farm.

Stern Occupation?

PRINCETON, N. J.—The stiffening tone of Gen. MacArthur's occupation policy in Japan in recent weeks has been very much in line with the mood of the American people.

During most of September the great majority of American civilians here at home didn't think our treatment of the vanquished Japs had been tough enough. When the institute began polling the country during the last 10 days of September on the issue of the Japanese occupation, it found that the number who wanted stiffer treatment of the Japs was twice as large as the number who thought the policy was firm enough. Recent developments in Japan, such as the seizure of Japanese financial assets, closing down of propaganda machines, further weakening of Jap war industries, as well as a growing list of war criminals, have all indicated a progressively stiffening policy.

During the period Sept. 20-30, field reporters for the institute questioned a true cross-section of American civilian voters on the following issue:

"What is your opinion of the way we are treating the Japanese—are we being too tough or not too tough enough?"

The replies:
We are not being tough enough 61%
Too tough 32%
Treatment is about right 6%
No opinion 3%

THE POLL reveals some interesting differences of opinion by age and by educational levels.

The policy of tougher treatment finds greatest support from young people interviewed, and least support from the most educated people, those who have had college training.

The differences by age and education are shown below:

Not tough enough 46% 63% 68%

It Says Here

I don't think I'll have to buy one of the new streamlined cars when they finally come out. After three years of no repairs, my old model is right in style with no bumpers, no running-board, no headlights and no door handles. The way it sheds accessories whenever I hit a bump in the road, it looks like a mechanical version of Gypsy Rose Lee. And it's always easy to find where I've gone. . . . You can just follow the trail of nuts, bolts and bearings.

But the new automobile designs are going to be revolutionary. Some of them will only have three wheels. But, of course, that isn't anything new. The Hollywood high school crowd has been using that type for years. But the advertisers tell us that the automobile of the future will be the last word in swank. All the piston rings will be made of platinum. . . . The pants over the wheels will have double pleats. . . . And every time you come to an intersection, Stokowski pops out of the hood and conducts the musical horns.

But there is one old-fashioned feature the designers haven't been able to do anything about. No matter how much they eliminate, they still haven't figured out a way to keep those monthly payments from coming due! In fact, all of the latest models will have a special electronic gadget built in the back so the finance companies can repossess them by radar.

New Englanders Are Well Fixed

HARTFORD, Conn.—A survey here yields a good picture of reconversion at this stage in centers of highly diversified industry. Most Connecticut and New England industry generally is well diversified.

As for the over-all, some 20,000 persons lost their jobs here suddenly when the war with Japan ended. Of this total, about 15,000 were in aircraft. A good many of the others were in ordinance manufactured at all sorts of converted peacetime plants. Hartford is headquarters for United Aircraft which contributed so heavily in engines, propellers, Vought Corsair fighters and Sikorsky helicopters. It used its own plants, and licensed plants of other corporations.

Unemployment compensation rolls here jumped from 1,700 on Aug. 11 to 13,400 on Sept. 15. A drop in new claims the week of Sept. 22 indicated that the situation was leveling off, which seems to be the case in other centers in this state.

A REALISTIC analysis of the employment situation here, as to the psychology and reactions of workers, comes from John G. Confrey, a veteran of 18 years' experience in this field who has worked with the state unemployment service here since it was established in 1938.

He knows people and is inclined to be philosophical. There were reports that people who were laid off just wouldn't take jobs. He had his staff make a careful check, a sort of Gallup poll with generous samplings.

This revealed two things. One was that people were holding off, hoping to get better jobs with higher wages than those offered—wages somewhat more closely approximating wartime pay. The other was that many jobs were offered in other cities and that raised a transportation problem. "They are looking around. They are pretty choosy. And look at the weather."

HE GRINNED. It was a mild October day. "There is neither a concentration on getting jobs, nor a concentration on not getting them," he said.

Incidentally, Mr. Confrey said that returning veterans do not fall into a class, with a particular approach and problem, but react just like everybody else. Some take jobs. Some are holding off.

People who do not want particular jobs offered have their own ways of rejecting them, he has discovered through experience. He explained: "They'll go to the job—yes. But they put on a long face and make themselves generally unpleasant. Or they get to work late. They have their ways of getting themselves found unsuitable."

Woodward, Helms To Join Tech

By F. M. WILLIAMS

Jack Helms, regular end on the 1942 Cotton Bowl team, and Charley Woodward, ace fullback for the Iowa Seahawks a year ago, both discharged service men, will join the Georgia Tech football squad Monday and will be eligible to play against Auburn, Coach Bobby Dodd said yesterday.

There is also a possibility that Billy Williams, a fullback on the 1943 Sugar Bowl eleven, will be out of the Navy in time to enroll in the semester opening Monday at Tech.

It's too bad the help arrives next week instead of this, for Coach Dodd could well use all three players against the Naval Academy, rated the nation's No. 2 eleven, when the two teams clash in Baltimore Saturday night.

Tech is evidently counting on being the defensive team a lot of the time against Navy, for all of yesterday's drill, except for about 10 minutes, was devoted to defensive scrimmaging against the "B" team.

Toward the end of the work-out there was a short offensive skirmish, with George Mathews and Jack Peek, the elusive half-backs, breaking away almost every time they got the ball.

But when the first team went to the showers, the second stringers found the B's just a little too tough, and the varsity boys didn't have much fun.

Coach Dodd plans another long, rough drill today and Thursday night the first group of players will take off for Baltimore. The remainder will leave Friday night.

With Woodward and Helms joining the ranks of returning servicemen coming back to school at Tech, the Jackets should be at their best against Auburn. The Naval V-12 boys now playing, but who will leave for other stations soon, will also be available for the Auburn game.

Those who will leave the squad are Tackle Deane Gaines, Guard Luke Bowen and Fullback Johnny McIntosh. Coach Dodd said each had individual orders and that it is possible he might have one or two of them for the Duke tilt.

It has previously been announced that Al Berman, Jimmy Luck and Gordon Clay would enroll at the start of the new semester.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(UP)—Lt. Norman "Babe" Young, star first baseman for the New Giants, was honorably discharged from the Coast Guard at Charleston, S. C., Monday, the Coast Guard office here revealed last night.

ALL IN THE GAME JACK TROY

One-Two Punch

It may be startling news, but two of the best backs in the United States aren't named Charlie Trippi.

No, sir, they go by the names of Felix (Doc) Blanchard and Glenn Davis—and they play for the same team.

The Army.

Having seen Davis and Blanchard send Notre Dame reeling with a devastating one-two punch a season ago, I can understand what Fritz Crisler, Michigan coach, means when he says:

"I've never seen a team that had two men like Blanchard and Davis. I've seen quite a number of teams that had one or the other, but this is the first time I've seen a team that had two—the double shotgun—in the same lineup."

"Football is a fairly simple thing. You rig your attack to stop a runner or you rig your attack to stop a plunger. Davis is the runner; Blanchard is the plunger and they are both superlative. What is a coach to do in a situation like this? I'll tell the world what I did. I set up a defense against Blanchard—but how was I to know it wouldn't be Davis? In short, I was strictly guessing. It turned out I guessed better than I knew how in making it close. Davis and Blanchard! My goodness!"

All that talk around here, and yet Georgia has only one Trippi!

The Buckeye Pair

Ohio State's stars come in pairs, too. Paul Sarringhaus and Dick Fisher have worked up quite a following as touchdown twins in the Buckeye sidshow.

Crisler doesn't rate them on a par with Army's double dose of dynamite, however.

"They (Sarringhaus and Fisher) are fine backs, but I think Blanchard and Davis are better. They have blistering speed and it will be a long time before we see another pair like them in one backfield."

The great teams generally have two, one for the headlong gains and the other for the quick thrusts into the open.

Nowadays, although the emphasis is on quick-opening plays, passing and wide sweeps, the hard-hitting line bucker is still important.

When Navy has Bobby Tom Jenkins in shape, he is rated one of the best fullbacks in the country. And to go along with him, of course, are Bob Kelly and Clyde (Smackover) Scott. In naming pairs, Jenkins and Scott will be the first to come to mind.

There was doubtless a fullback on those great Illinois teams featuring Red Grange and those Michigan teams dominated by Tom Harmon.

Their names don't come to mind because Grange and Harmon stole the show. But those behind the scenes know that they rendered valuable assistance in diversifying the attack and covering some of the ground.

Penn's Kids

So far, Pennsylvania hasn't advanced a pair of names in the all-star backfield that is performing so handsomely for the Quakers this fall. It is, perhaps, due to the youth of the Quakers. Reference is made only to an all-star backfield.

On Saturday Pennsylvania's bunch of kids routed North Carolina, 49 to 0, and Coach George Munger said, "They looked great, but we don't have any illusions about beating Navy" (Penn and Navy clash Saturday week).

Navy and Penn, incidentally, are the only major gridiron powers that haven't been scored on after three games.

"Teams like Brown, Dartmouth and North Carolina are in our home league," Coach Munger added. "But against Annopolis we're asking some pretty good youngsters to meet some mighty good experienced players. These 17 and 18-year-old kids just can't take the physical beating older men can take."

On the other hand, the Penn coach added, "We don't want anyone to get the idea we'll be lying down. There's nothing these youngsters would rather do than beat Navy."

The idea seems to be growing. There certainly is nothing Notre Dame had rather do—and we'll just leave Army out of it.

Record Haul

We'll sign off with a fish story. It is presented through the kindness of Dr. Louie D. Newton, and it's not about Jonah and the whale.

"Dear Jack: Mr. H. W. Stephenson, 2121 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E., sent me a clipping from the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, of recent date, which shades all the fish stories I have come upon, present or past. The story is signed by Harry P. Moore, and sets forth that Joe Evans and Elwood Cryden, young fishermen of Essex county, caught 250,000 pounds of croakers in a single haul in Poquoson, Va., and sold them for $35,000. The story goes on to say that the $35,000 they earned from their record haul represented just about one-third of the amount they realized during the month of July and the first two weeks of August—that in six weeks they caught fish that were sold on the open market for $105,000."

"Moore goes on to give chapter and verse—that Evans and Cryden had very limited equipment, including two nets, valued at about $200 and a boat that could transport only a few tons, and yet they caught 125 tons in one haul. The story quotes veteran fishermen in and around Norfolk as declaring that the catch of these young chaps from Essex county breaks all records that they ever heard about. And J. D. Armory, of Hampton, Va., proprietor of one of the largest wholesale fish houses on the Atlantic coast, says that it is in all probability a world's record."

"In his research on the story, Moore got a consensus of opinion from experienced fishermen that bad weather must have driven this unprecedented school of fish into the river. Others thought that they might have come into the river to spawn. It is stated that after the word got out that Evans and Cryden had caught 250,000 pounds of croakers on this one haul, the fishermen from near and far crowded into the river, and without exception they each made big hauls, but nothing approaching Evans and Cryden's."

"And the story ends with the statement that the very day that these youngsters made this record haul there was a general scarcity of fish."

"Next to Paul Richards getting that two-bagger with three men on, I'd say this is just about the story of the year."

Louie D. Newton."

Bulldogs, Tide Rated In Top Ten

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.

The Williamson system, in accordance with mathematical consistency, presents the following as the best 10 college teams of the 1945 season to date: They are: Army, with a rating of 99.7; Navy, 99.4; Alabama, 96.3; Notre Dame, 95.3; Minnesota, 95.1; Mississippi State, 94.2; Ohio State, 94 (dropped in rating because of a hard 12-0 tussle with Wisconsin); Texas, 93.9; Georgia, 93.8; and Oklahoma A. & M., 93.6.

The system didn't do so badly last week in spite of several shocks. For example, it called Compton 25, Long Beach 0; Oklahoma A. and M. 26, S. M. U. 12; Bowling Green 26, Case 7; Columbia 27, Yale 13; Denison 13, Wooster 6; Jax 26, 13, Ft. Pierce 6; Harvard 21, Rochester 13; Missouri 13, Iowa State 7; Rutgers 19, Muhlenberg 6; Texas 12, Oklahoma 7; U. C. L. A. 13, California 0, and a number of other close games in major and minor circles.

Despite last week's upsets of the headlines, the system batted 87.5 per cent in calling winners over losers (not counting ties).

3 Changes Made In Prep Slate This Weekend

Three changes have been made in the previously announced high school football schedule for this weekend. The Hapeville-Commercial game has been moved up to Thursday night on the Russell High field in East Point. Russell and West Fulton will vie Friday night at the same site, and Marist will engage the Athens High Maroons at 8 p. m. Saturday night at Ponce de Leon Park.

Tech High and Lanier, both undefeated and the leading aspirants for the G.I.A.A. crown, will battle it out in the feature game of the week at 8 p. m. Friday at Ponce de Leon Park, with the prospect that one of the largest crowds of the season will be on hand. Tickets are now on sale at Reeder & McGaughey and Tom Slater's.

College Park has filled an open date and plays Cedarturn on Cedarturn and other Atlanta teams also play Friday night games on out-of-town grids. Boys' High will take on Chick Shivers' Savannah High there. Decatur will be at Gainesville, Fulton at Marietta, GMA at Marion, Ala., and North Fulton at Rome.

Plummer Winner Of Service Meet

Lou Plummer, the big ex-GI who meets Al Massey in one of Friday night's twin main events on the city auditorium mat, captured the Mediterranean grappling crown at Oran by tossing seven men in one night. It was one of these quickie tournaments and Big Lou waded right through the field.

Plummer is an interesting character. His athletic career started on the grid at Notre Dame, from there he took a turn at professional football and then switched to wrestling. He is one of the better heavyweights of the game. His chief ambition right now is to land a title match with Wild Bill Longson. Lou has never met Longson in the ring. The big Texan has been going great since being honorably discharged from the Coast Guard and may get that long-sought-after match with the champ if he disposes of Massey Friday night.

The other half of the main event will feature Barton Hill against Rudy Strongberg.

The other three matches, all 20-minute limit bouts, will pit Jack Westworth against the Black Demon, a masked man; Irish Jack Kelley against Wally Greb and Bruce White versus Bill Crucille.

Losers Pay Tourney At Druid Hills Club

A loserspay tournament will be held at the Druid Hills Golf Club this afternoon with a total of 48 players taking part. The "Blues" captained by Jess Robb will be pitted against the "Reds" captained by R. H. Smith.

The lineup of matches with the "Blues" named first is as follows: Jess Robb vs. Ted Buchanan, Lester Horton vs. R. H. Smith, R. Ghelason vs. C. D. Jones, S. M. Haw vs. Rex Wood, Don Armstrong vs. Sam Swilling, W. Huff vs. Luke Holloway, S. E. Beard vs. L. D. McMahon, Fleming Settle vs. George Puller, Tony Phillips vs. Russell Deal, Henry Hope vs. Leslie Law, L. S. Mitchell vs. Dr. Bridges, W. H. McPhail vs. Dr. C. M. Crowell, W. R. Keever vs. Glenn McNeil, A. W. Hartman vs. J. E. Denmark, Tom Hays vs. Dana Killebrew, J. C. Inell vs. W. R. Cooper, George Shadburn vs. A. B. McClain, Dr. Ralph Brown vs. J. C. Cooke, Charles Dorch vs. Hal Lindsay, Milton Goodley vs. Dr. H. F. Hope, Deane vs. W. A. Seiman, R. H. Harvey vs. Dr. R. F. J. Seagle vs. Arthur Cheeves and J. S. Knight vs. bye (opponent to be named today).

All Georgia Guard Units Coming Home

Georgia's National Guardsmen, many of whom bore the brunt of some of the hardest fighting of the war, will, within a few months, be returned to native soil and be reactivated as postwar National Guard units.

Col. Duckworth, Gynecologist, Back in Georgia

An Army gynecologist, who delivered 600 babies in Georgia while stationed at Fort Benning for five years, is back in his adopted state for the third time after four years' imprisonment in Japanese camps in the Philippines.

He is Col. James W. Duckworth, who assumed command yesterday of Lawson General hospital, succeeding Brig. Gen. William L. Sheep, who supervised construction of the hospital and was its first commanding officer. Brig. Gen. Sheep is retiring from the Army after 38 years' service.

"This is my third assignment in Georgia, so I know all about the attractions of the state and the hospitality of its people," said the colonel.

"I have been in the northern part, at Fort Oglethorpe; in the southern part of the state while at Fort Benning, and now in the central section, Atlanta. I can tell you," said the colonel, who commanded the notorious Cabanatuan American prisoner camp, "that after the cruel treatment I have seen meted out by the Japs it's going to be pleasant to be at home among people who know how to make one feel at home."

"And, furthermore, after undergoing a severe diet with little to eat for four years, I'm going to enjoy the savory food served here in Georgia," he said.

Col. Duckworth first came to Fort Oglethorpe in 1920, when he held the post of assistant chief of surgical service. Previously he had accepted a Regular Army commission in 1917 and went overseas with the Fourth Infantry division, seeing action in three major offensives. He was then a captain.

Patrol Will Escort Shriners to Griffin

A group of approximately 200 Atlanta Shriners will be escorted by the Georgia State Patrol at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow from Atlanta to Griffin, where they will take part in a parade, barbecue, a dance and other festivities being sponsored by the Griffin Shrine Club, a unit of Yaarab Temple.

The following groups of Atlanta Shriners will meet at the Shrine Mosque to make the trip: the Oriental band, color guard, degree team, uniformed patrol, chanters, mounted patrol, the divan (officers) and the red devil organization.

All Savannah In Fight Against VD, Tuberculosis

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 16.—Residents of Savannah and the surrounding area in Chatham county are eagerly responding to the state's first county-wide tests for syphilis and tuberculosis, according to reports from health authorities here.

On the first day of the drive, which is sponsored by the Savannah-Chatham County Health Center in co-operation with the U. S. Public Health Service, 890 Savannahs lined up before the health department building and other places in the city for the tests.

Among the first to respond to the campaign were 50 students of the St. Benedict school for Negroes.

Crowds began gathering at the county health center at 9 a. m. on the first day, and grew so numerous that other stations were opened at noon to facilitate the examinations.

A day after the opening of the drive the tests for syphilis and tuberculosis were completed, according to the health officials in charge of the drive.

The blood specimens, identified by numbers only, were sent to a specially set-up laboratory for processing.

The X-rays taken yesterday were developed today. Two doctors, specialists in lung diseases, will study the films and note any abnormalities in the X-rays.

An enlargement of questionable negatives will be made to confirm the first film and the prospective patient will be notified. Arrangements will be made for the patient to go to his private doctor or receive free treatment for early tuberculosis.

Receiving Stolen Goods Charge Nets Indictment
Maurice Hanges, a jewelry store employee, yesterday was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury on a charge of receiving stolen goods from two Negro boys, both under 16 years of age, on Sept. 25.

The true bill charged Hanges with giving 50 cents to the two boys for a diamond stickpin valued at $250 and later found to be stolen.

The grand jury also indicted Paul Bransford on two charges of selling tickets to the Georgia Tech-Notre Dame football game at a price in excess of the printed ticket price. Bransford allegedly sold the tickets to Joe White and Lanier Shivers, of Griffin.

Last week the grand jury returned an indictment against Mose Gold charging ticket scalping.

school. Three other faculty members had resigned previously.
The state senate, in session in Baton Rouge, adopted today unanimously a resolution requesting the LSU board of supervisors "to put an end to the condition presently existing" in the medical school.

Dr. Hatcher, in a statement issued at Baton Rouge, declared that these "few faculty members" had disagreed with the university administration over appointment of a new dean of the school of medicine, but added that "no faculty members have been disturbed in the performance of their professional duties."

Dr. Hatcher denied there had been "political motivation of any sort" in connection with operation of the school, as charged by the college alumni association. He also said that there was "positively no violation" of tenure or university regulations.

"It should be made clear to the public," Dr. Hatcher added, "that only 15 of a total of 125 faculty members have resigned."

Dealers Bidding
On Army Surplus
Motor Vehicles
Competitive bidding on war surplus motor vehicles began here yesterday, when an estimated 600 dealers representing 18 states thronged the Department of Commerce salesroom in the Belle Isle building.

The former reported 2,300
trucks of various types, carry-alls, pick-ups, cargoes, and a small number of passenger cars had been reduced by government priorities to about 2,100 vehicles, and from that number, about 300 had been "pulled" for veterans, a spokesman of the agency reported.
So 1,800 vehicles, valued at approximately $1,000 a unit, were up for three days of bidding, with
A. S. Burt, in charge of the automobile division, handling the sale.

Unlike auction bidding, sales were made to the highest price named on cards turned in by the bidders for each item. Only one bid per unit was allowed and sales were completed after tabulation of the first count, it was pointed out.

When over 40 sales had been made, Burt estimated that the vehicles were going for about 75 per cent of the ceilings. Each dealer checked off each item called according to number, make, year, type, capacity, identification number and ceiling price on bid sheets supplied for the sale.

ON THE AIR
By PAUL JONES
The hectic days of the "jazz age" will be brought back in vivid reality on the air tonight, when Sophie Tucker, the "last of the red-hot mamas" visits the Andrews Sisters at 10:30 via WGST, with a medley of tunes she made popular as the program's highlight.
Sophie will sing her famed
"Some of These Days" and then the Andrews Sisters will award her the "Green Room," award.
The Sisters will do "Tico Tico."
"It's Been a Long Ago Time" and
"Paper Moon."
The experiences of a group of tourists who contracted chicken-pox and were forced into quarantine on Pago-Pago island in the South Seas, will be described by Marvin Miller during the ABC broadcast of Coronet Storyteller, scheduled at 9:55 tonight over WAGA.
Excerpts from "Mignon," sung by Jean Tennyson, soprano; Mario Lanza, tenor, and Robert Weede, baritone, will highlight the Great Moments in Music program at 10 tonight over WGST. Massenet's
"Thais" was originally scheduled for tonight's program.

Tuskegee Head Is Speaker Here

"Our nation must face the challenge of democracy that it accords to every citizen, regardless of race or religion, the inalienable rights of full citizenship," Dr. Frederick Douglass Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, was made yesterday at the second annual observance of Charter Day at Atlanta University. The address, delivered in Sisters Chapel, Spelman College, was heard by an audience of approximately 1,200 made up of students, faculty, alumni and friends of the University System.
"As long as race or religion is made the basis of degree of participation in the privileges of citizenship, we undermine the very foundation on which this nation stands," Dr. Patterson continued.
"This war has shown clearly the price our nation has paid when the right of education is denied on the assumption that it is a privilege of race and religion."

CIO Calls House Tax Bill Unfair; Asks No 3 Pct., Double Exemptions

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The CIO denounced the house-approved tax-cutting bill today as a device for providing "huge windfalls to the richest corporations and wealthiest individuals."

It suggested to the Senate Finance Committee a substitute program designed to benefit primarily lower bracket income taxpayers and small businesses.

The program was outlined by Clifford McAvoy, legislative representative of CIO's United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

Previously, Sen. Taft, Republican, Ohio, came out unexpectedly in favor of the Treasury's tax-cutting proposals in place of those voted by the house.

The Treasury wanted the excess profits tax ended Jan. 1. The house bill would reduce the tax now and end it Jan. 1, 1947. The Treasury also proposed repeal of the normal income tax on individuals.

The house scaled it down instead in such a way that some congress members complained it mainly aided those with big incomes.

3-POINT PROGRAM

McAvoy said the CIO favored a three-point program for relief of smaller wage earners:

1. "Repeat the grossly unfair 3 per cent 'normal' tax." He said about four-fifths of this relief would go to families earning less than $5,000 a year.

2. Increase exemptions for single persons from $500 to $1,000 and for married couples from $1,000 to $2,000 while retaining the $500 credit for each child or other dependent.

3. Permit individuals to "carry-back and carry-forward" for two years any portion of their personal exemptions and credits not used in a current tax year. Thus if a taxpayer with exemptions totaling $3,000 made only $2,500 in a tax year, he could apply the $500 unused credit against taxes for the preceding or subsequent year.

McAvoy urged that discharged veterans be forgiven income taxes up to $250 owed from 1941 to the time of discharge, and that refunds up to $250 be granted veterans who paid their taxes during that period.

He said the CIO recommends that the excess profits tax be continued until Jan. 1, 1947, and that its carry-back and carry-forward provisions be repealed. The house voted to reduce the present effective rate of 85.5 per cent to 60 per cent.

For relief of small businesses the CIO recommends a $5,000 exemption from the corporate income tax, lowering rates for enterprises with net incomes of less than $100,000, and giving incorporated small businesses the right to be taxed as partnerships.

McAvoy contended that the house-approved changes in the excess profits tax would give 900 corporations a tax reduction of $1,797,000,000 and that proposed horizontal reductions in the corporate income tax also would benefit primarily large corporations.

Chairman George told reporters after the session that he thought the committee probably would write in some provisions concerning veterans, but he did not say what they might be.

STATE TAKES CHARGE

The walkout, over wage demands, had disrupted bus and trolley transportation along the eastern edge of Massachusetts from New Hampshire to Rhode Island, an area with 1,000,000 daily passengers.

A majority of the employees voted to return only after Gov. Maurice J. Tobin seized the line under war emergency powers and appointed a state administrator of the system.

The CIO threatened a strike of 18,000 members in New Castle county, Delaware, unless there was a peaceful settlement of the five-week strike at the National Vulcanized Fiber Company involving 700 persons. Such a strike would shut down or cripple a variety of industries and affect 125,000 residents of Wilmington and nearby communities.

CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers at National Fiber asserted the company failed to negotiate a new contract. The company said it would take no action until the workers returned.

TROUBLE IN HOLLYWOOD

Disorders broke out again in the prolonged motion picture dispute. Two men were injured and a third was arrested when more than 300 pickets set in the street at Warner Brothers' studio, Hollywood, and defied sheriff's officers.

Eric Johnston, new head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, conferred with leaders of the two warring AFL factions. The strike embraces between 3,000 and 7,000 motion picture workers.

In the port of New York, world's busiest, insurgents jeered at AFL longshoremen returning to work on the 16th day of their strike. A union spokesman estimated returning dockhands at between 5,000 and 7,000 of the 35,000 who went on strike.

Hundreds of police stood guard on the piers and officials reported conditions "normal and quiet." Hundreds of ships lay idle in the harbor waiting to be loaded or unloaded.

SHIRT FACTORY OPENS

Two thousands CIO United Steel Workers employed by the Aluminum Company of America at Alcoa, Tenn., walked out in protest, a union representative said, over a grievance involving seniority.

In LaFollette, Tenn., one of two shirt factories employing a total of 700 persons resumed operations and 250 workers were back. The employees are affiliated with the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

RELEASE PLANNED FOR OBJECTORS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(P)—Selective Service today announced a plan for release of an estimated 400 conscientious objectors before the first of the year, on a basis of age and services performed.

Objectors now in civilian public service camps who are 38 or older will be released within the next 60 days, regardless of length of service, Selective Service said.

Those 35 years of age or over who have had more than two years of service are to be released by Jan. 1.

halted by the war in December, 1941, at the Ottawa, Ill., plant of Libbey-Owens-Ford Company.

The plant general manager said he had been informed by officials of the CIO Federation of Glass, Ceramic and Silica Sand Workers that the strike was "unauthorized" and "wildcat." He estimated about 500 were away from work.

In Philadelphia, 600 strikers resumed work, but the gain was offset by a new walkout of 700 cigar workers at a branch of the American Tobacco Company in a continuing dispute.

A stoppage of nearly two months was concluded when 600 employees of E. F. Houghton & Company went back to their posts after wage increases.

17 PLANTS AT "PEACE"

In the Pacific northwest lumber strikes, involving 61,000 AFL members, and 900 forced AFL pickets from two Coos Bay mills and reopened three plants closed by the AFL.

Full-scale operations in the mills, employing a total of 375 persons, were impeded because key inspectors are AFL.

An AFL source reported agreements had restored operations in 17 plants since the five-state strike closed down more than 300 properties Sept. 24. The strike is for an industry-wide hourly minimum of $1.10.

Wage negotiations were resumed between operators and CIO members seeking a 25-cent-an-hour raise. Some 40,000 lumber hands are affiliated with the CIO.

Southeast Coal Supplies At Point of Exhaustion

The southeast faces a serious coal shortage, according to late reports from retail coal dealers throughout the area. In Atlanta, as well as in many other cities, these reports show that coal supplies have reached the point of exhaustion.

This situation is the result of the existing coal embargo, which limits shipments of coal to public utilities, railroads, hospitals and to ports on the Great Lakes. This embargo went into effect on Oct. 3.

Charles M. Farrar, executive vice president of the Southeastern Retail Coal Association, says the present condition arises from "inequitable distribution."

In an effort to correct this "discrimination," he has written letters to United States senators and members of the house of representatives from this area urging them to use their influence to obtain a change in existing regulations.

The states of Georgia, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina, explained Farrar, depend for their coal on the fields of eastern Kentucky, Tennessee and southwestern Virginia. Coal from other fields are unavailable to this area, he continued, because of "exorbitantly high freight rates."

The states in this area are designated as "District 8."

"Under a regulation by the Solid Fuels Administration," Farrar said, "all sections of the country are permitted 80 per cent of the amount of coal shipped during the period from April 1, 1943, to April 1, 1944, from these coal fields.

"However, in many states, the retail coal merchants are permitted 80 per cent of District 8 coal and may also receive coal from other fields which are available, thereby obtaining 100 per cent of their normal requirements."

"At the present time, the SFA is issuing orders and directives to coal producers in eastern Kentucky, Tennessee and southwestern Virginia to show preference to lake shipments over retail coal merchants. Shipments to the lakes will not cease until Nov. 15. Therefore, with low production in these fields and this coal being diverted from the southeast, its source of supply is cut off and prevents an equitable distribution."

Farrar sent his letters off to Washington yesterday and expects early action there.

The normal domestic demand for coal in Atlanta is 600,000 tons a year. With shipments cut off entirely, coal dealers said yesterday that the supply is "subnormal."

"If this condition exists much longer," said one coal dealer, "the situation will become chaotic. We are receiving hundreds of orders for coal every day and we can't fill them. We simply can't get the coal."

Farrar explained the SFA order giving lake ports a preference by stating that shipping through the lake ports will cease for the winter on Nov. 15.

100,000 Ships' Officers Delay Strike 10 Days

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(P)—Capt. Harry Martin, president of Local 88, National Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots of America (AFM), said today a possible strike of 100,000 ships' officers throughout the country had been postponed at least 10 days.

Martin said the National War Labor Board in Washington had agreed to conduct another hearing Oct. 26 in the union's protest against a War Labor Board decision granting officers $45 monthly to compensate for reduced peacetime earnings.

About 12,000 masters, mates and pilots in the New York area adopted a resolution Oct. 7 rejecting the WLB recommendation and approved notification to the WLB that a strike vote would be taken.

Martin said a strike would affect 100,000 officers throughout the country.

The WLB granted the $45 monthly increase to compensate, Martin said, for pay reductions in some cases from $1,000 to $415 a month.

his conviction, Jacobs denied the charge of receiving stolen goods and told the jury he devoted the bulk of his time to law practice, leaving the management of his jewelry shop entirely in the hands of a repairman.

A convicted burglar testified all his business dealings had been with Jacobs.

The case first reached the courts in December, 1940. A mistrial was declared by Judge Dorsey in April, 1941. Jacobs was finally convicted and sentenced in January, 1944.

The Georgia supreme court later denied a writ of certiorari in the case and Jacobs began serving his sentence in February, 1945.

Reason for the board's reversal of its decision to deny the parole was explained by the members as: "Now, upon receiving a letter from Joseph Jacobs, dated October 10, 1945, requesting reconsideration of his application for parole, and noting from the file that he has served approximately eight months with an excellent prison conduct record and the parole report shows this to be his first offense, it is hereby voted to release him under parole supervision."

NIGHT CLUBBER GIVES $300 AWAY, LANDS IN JAIL AND IS FINED $12

Guests at the Ansley Hotel's Rainbow Roof Monday night may have thought it was "Bank Night" when a gentleman in a generous mood, stepped from the crowd, stacked several hundred dollars in greenbacks on a table, and started giving away 10's and 20's.

How far this generous person, whom police later identified as Glenn Roper, a visiting automobile dealer from Gastonia, N. C., would have gone with his venture, no one knows. He was interrupted by Police Lt. R. H. McClean and Patrolman S. E. Caldwell. Roper was arrested and placed under $100 bond.

In a much less benevolent spirit yesterday Roper told City Recorder A. W. Callaway he disposed of $300, whereupon the recorder let him off for a $12 fine on charges of drunkenness, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. The North Carolinian told Judge Callaway when he had too many drinks he often got wild and did foolish things.

Cmdr. Post Returns To Law Practice

Lt. Cmdr. Allen Post, USNR, has been returned to inactive status and has resumed the practice of law here with Moore, Post & Gardner.

He was last stationed at the Bureau of Naval Personnel in Washington, D. C., where he supervised the nationwide operations of the offices of Naval Officer Procurement and the Naval Aviation Cadet Lt. Cmdr. Allen Post Selection Boards.

Post entered the service April 13, 1943.

below any standard we would wish to impose."

He said that a bold anti-inflation program is necessary to avoid "economic disaster," because Germany ended the war with a "grossly inflated volume of currency in circulation" and most of its assets are based on its "swollen national debt."

MAY REDUCE INCOMES

"In this explosive setting," he said, it is necessary to establish and maintain industry-wide price controls, restore permissible production capacity and scale down incomes and accumulated savings.

To be successful, he said, the program must apply to all of Germany. Pending completion of joint action by all control authorities, he said, "all feasible measures on these lines are being taken in the U. S. occupation zone."

He also reported that: About 15 per cent of industrial plants are operating, but probably at not more than 5 per cent of capacity. Production of building materials and timber is increasing.

Shortage of workers continues to hamper coal production, although mine workers increased by 18 per cent in the six weeks ending Sept. 1. It appears possible for Germany to export 10,000,000 tons of coal.

THE CROW'S NEST

At last, on the barrel head, he stamped—James Crow's Whiskey!

In the same year (1835) that the first "iron horse" arrived in Frankfort, Ky., James Crow began to make whiskey a few miles away.

His first distillery was a little log cabin, where he worked with a crude pot still. After many months of study and experiment, he found the superb formula that satisfied his taste.

When he thus achieved the finest bourbon that he could possibly make, he proudly stamped on each barrel head—James Crow's Whiskey.

That whiskey won fame throughout the world. The New York Sun once stated, "To James Crow more than to any other man, is due the international reputation that Kentucky whiskey enjoys."

Now a great modern distillery has replaced the little log cabin. But James Crow's springhouse is still in use. The trees he planted, the old stone walls he built, still stand. And the standard of excellence that James Crow established, endures in Old Crow today.

SALLY FORTH Says: Pegrams To Return Home; De Sales Harrisons Depart

Last goodbyes have been said to those popular Atlantans, Virginian and De Sales Harrison, who are now on their way to Chattanooga, Tenn., where they will open their attractive home on Lookout Mountain for future residents of the De Sales is out of the Navy. They were accompanied by their son, Pegram, and their young daughter, Nancy Knight, whose devoted grandmother, Mrs. R. B. Pegram Sr., is already feeling a keen sense of nostalgia. Since Nancy Knight was born, she has spent a great deal of the time with her grandparents while her mother has been visiting her father at his various Naval stations. De Sales Jr. will remain in Atlanta where he is attending Emory University and living at the Chi Phi fraternity house. "Missie," the other member of the Harrison household, is enrolled at Mount Vernon, in Washington, D. C., and, at present, is thrilled beyond words over the approaching party at which Malcom Courts is entertaining for Adm. Denfeld in the nation's capital tomorrow, and to which she has a special invitation.

Virginia's parents have sold their charming Tuxedo road home to the Charles Jagers who have been occupying the Everard Richards' house on Chatham road during the latter's absence in Montgomery, Ala. The Pegrams will move to the Biltmore hotel and take possession of the apartment which Virginia and De Sales have just vacated.

Still more news comes to Sally about the Pegrams. Nancy and Bob Pegram Jr. have resided in Washington, D. C., since Bob has been on the Joint Chief of Staffs. Bob expects to be released from the service about November 1st and, after a vacation which he and Nancy will spend in New York and Canada, they will return to Atlanta and move back into their home on Arden road, which has been occupied by that delightful couple, Agnes and Walter Sams, of Athens, while Walter has been commanding at Emory University. Bob was a lieutenant colonel in the Army, serving in England and Africa.

COL. BRENNAN HERE

Catherine and Joe Brennan had a wonderful treat last weekend. Joe's brother, Henry, who has been a lieutenant colonel in the Army, stationed at Casa Blanca, arrived by plane to spend several days with his family and attend to matters connected with his honorable discharge from the service. Henry has served as Wing Judge Advocate of the Air Transport Command, and in the past month has visited France, Italy, Greece, Egypt and the Holy Land. On his homeward flight, he came by way of Newfoundland.

Now that Henry is a civilian again, he has joined his wife in Pensacola, Fla., from whence they will leave shortly for their home in Savannah.

HOLLYWOOD VISITORS

When the glamorous movie star, Veronica Lake, learned that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Anthony Keane, of Hollywood, would be in Atlanta during the weekend en route home from Florida, she made them promise to look up her good friends, John and Dorothy Conner. The result was that Mr. and Mrs. Keane were honored at dinner Saturday evening at the Mirador Room of the Capital City Club by the Conners.

It goes without saying that the main topic of conversation was the beautiful blond Veronica who took such an active part in the War Bond tours. It was while on these tours for the treasury department that the movie actress met John, whose outstanding work for the same cause will long be remembered. Once when John was in charge of the bond drive here, a lock of Veronica's famous blond hair was auctioned off to an Atlanta merchant for $185,000 in War Bonds.

WEST BROTHERS HOME AGAIN

After months of separation, it is quite a coincidence that the West brothers, George Jr. and Charles, should get their honorable discharges at approximately the same time and are back in Atlanta with their wives.

George, who entered the service with the Georgia National Guard and has been a master sergeant with the Coast Artillery, belonged to the first unit to arrive in the Pacific. He was in New Guinea for two and a half years, and his unit won the President's Citation. He recently married attractive Norma Lee Gentry, of Des Moines, Iowa, and they have just arrived for residence from California.

Charles, who has been with the Seabees in the Aleutians for three years, has just received his honorable discharge from the Navy and has joined his pretty wife, the former Margie Eichenlaub, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George West Sr., on Ponce de Leon avenue, where they will reside until the completion of their home.

Chi Omega Alumnae

The Chi Omega Alumnae Association will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. Harris Dew, 214 Peachtree Battle avenue.

Beta Sigma Phi To Entertain Rushees

The Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will entertain fall rushees at a get-together this evening at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel at 8:15. Thursday evening the chapter will honor rushees at an informal Halloween dance at Legion Post No. 1, beginning at 8 o'clock. Saturday afternoon rushees will be guests at a tea at Rich's. Pledging will follow at a city-wide preferential tea Sunday afternoon.

Civitan Auxiliary

Atlanta Civitan Auxiliary meets at the home of Mrs. Paul A. Clement, 861 East Rock Springs road, N. E., today at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Ernest Rogers will present Leonid Skvirakey, well-known Atlanta artist-photographer, who will speak on Russia.

Hostesses serving with Mrs. Clement include Mesdames Leslie Hubbard, Devereaux McClatchey, Hillary Bailey, Frank Garson, H. A. Smeeten and George P. Howard Jr.

Amaryllis Garden Club

The Amaryllis Garden Club meets today with Mrs. S. N. Bone, 119 Vannoy street, and the subject of the "Georgia History" series will be "The Little White House." Mrs. S. V. Pierce, the president, asks members to bring an arrangement of flowers or autumn leaves and berries for the display contest.

Peachtree Hills Club

The Peachtree Hills Woman's Club will meet today at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Jack Brown, 99 Peachtree Hills avenue. Dr. Herman Turner will speak on "Youth Conservation."

Capital City O. E. S.

Capital City Chapter No. 111 O. E. S. will be officially visited by the worthy grand matron, Mrs. Alvie Hill, this evening at 8 o'clock in the John R. Wilkinson Masonic Hall.

Miss Willingham Feted at Parties

Parties continue in honor of Miss Catherine Willingham, whose marriage to Ens. Earle William Baggerly Jr., of Independence, Mo., will be a brilliant social event of Saturday at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church.

The Piedmont Driving Club formed the setting yesterday for a luncheon at which Mrs. W. C. Dutton and Mrs. Joe Kircher entertained in honor of Miss Willingham. The Mirador room of the Capital City Club formed the setting Monday for a luncheon at which Mrs. James Porter entertained in honor of Miss Willingham.

Today, Mrs. R. H. Hogg will give a tea at her home on Muscogee avenue in honor of this bride-elect. On the wedding date, Mrs. Catherine B. Willingham will entertain at a wedding breakfast in honor of her daughter and Ens. Baggerly at the Biltmore hotel.

Veterans' Postwar Notebook

By MAJ. THOMAS M. NIAL

WASHINGTON—There's something unfair about the set-up for disabled men who get training or education under the veterans' vocational rehabilitation program—Public 16. It has to do with the money paid to an ex-service man while training.

I think the point I have in mind should be explained to you who possibly are a disabled veteran, because it's to your interest to know.

Suppose we consider two disabled ex-service men, Frank and Joe. Both have the same kind of disability. Both are rated as 60 per cent disabled and draw $69 a month disability pension.

Frank wants education or training. And he needs it, because he's held by the Veterans' Administration to be in need of vocational rehabilitation, and is thus eligible for his training under Public 16. He's told he can take that or he can get it under the provisions of the GI Bill. He can make the choice.

If he chooses Public 16, his pension will be raised to $92 a month while training. If he picks the GI Bill, he'll continue to get his $69 pension, and the government will pay him an extra $23—total $92. I explained about that in my last article.

But Joe is declared by the Veterans' Administration not to be in need of vocational training. Let's say he was a young practicing lawyer and he can still go on with that profession. Thus, he isn't eligible for education or training under Public 16. Therefore, he has no choice to make, as Frank had.

Yet he's eligible for some training under the GI Bill. So he decides to take some. What will he get while training?

He will still get his full pension of $69 AND he will get $50 a month while training under the GI Bill. Total $119 a month!

Frank, who was eligible under both Public 16 and the GI Bill can get only $92 a month, whichever he takes. But Joe, eligible under only the GI Bill, can draw $119 a month.

Why is this? It's because, if you apply for vocational rehabilitation and are held to be in need of it, you're eligible for training under either Public 16 or the GI Bill and you can get, at most, only $92 a month, regardless of which law you choose.

But if you're disabled, but do not apply for vocational rehabilitation, you're eligible for training or education under the GI Bill only. The GI Bill education scheme pays $50 a month. So you get that $50 and you still keep your pension. If the pension happens to be a substantial one, like Joe's $69 mentioned above, you'll draw more while training than another fellow training under Public 16.

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED
Maj. Nial will answer your individual questions about World War II veterans' rights without charge as quickly as he can get to them. Simply write to him, in care of The Constitution, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped reply envelope.

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—Before 8:27 a. m. you should make an attempt to advance your personal interests, for you can make a more favorable impression on others. Between 8:27 a. m. and 4:05 p. m. you are apt to be very changeable and to wish that you had done something other than you have done. After 4:05 p. m. and throughout the afternoon and evening favors your phase of life.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—Before 5:33 a. m. and after 7:47 p. m. no chances should be taken that can be avoided. Use care in traveling and avoid discussions. Between 5:33 a. m. and 7:47 p. m. favors general business interests and if you will act quickly, you can promote stable plans to success.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Business and professional changes are not favored today. Attend to routine. Before 11:33 a. m. is very unfavorable for the quick consummation of affairs. Avoid confusion, uncertainty and be careful of your mental attitude towards those who are at the head of affairs. Guard your health during the evening hours and use caution in eating highly seasoned foods.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Vagueness and confusion, or dealings with people who are undecided, will not bring you profit before 9:44 a. m. and at this time use care around liquids and in your diet. Between 9:44 a. m. and 9:58 p. m. is a favorable period for seeking the influence and assistance of professional people, and for obtaining your desires in a harmonious way.

July 23-Aug. 22 (LEO)—Your attempts towards accomplishments may be retarded before 1:31 p. m. either through inefficiency, a lack of vitality, or because of a depressed feeling. This is an auspicious time for finishing work done quickly. Between 1:31 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. your work will show better results.

Miniature Waist Fashion Rule Everywhere

By IDA JEAN KAIN

According to off-the-record reports from salesgirls, the bulk of women, a shade over pleasantly plump, are bound and determined to squeeze into the smallest size. They say that few women are broad-minded enough to request a size 20 if they can possibly slip into an 18. And graduating to a larger size seems to be a worse psychological hurdle than going from age 39 to 40. One buyer who caters to fashionable women confided that they have one customer who gets around it all by changing the size labels, so she can prove to her friends she still wears a size 18.

Why all the fuss? After all, your size can be a secret between you and the saleswoman... unless it's too tight. Take this advice or leave it, but fashion authorities at the New York Dress Institute strongly advise the larger size if you want to belittle your weight. Never hug the curves! The spots to watch are across the derriere and through the armpoles. It's far more chic, and more comfortable, to take a size that allows room to move around in, and have it nipped in at the waist and at the spots that can stand nipping. Then it's like a custom-made dress.

This season, have a care before ordering the dress chopped off too short. Skirts are edging down. Fashion is always changing. They wear as far up as they could go, or farther, and now, with more material in sight, the trend is toward slightly longer skirts. Again, take a tip from the custom-made clothes which are as long as 15 1/2 inches from the floor. They're smarter. The designers are violently opposed to skirts that hit the leg high enough to show that back-of-the-knee space. That length can make the most expensive gown look cheap.

Miniature waists are the rule everywhere. Keep the middle whittled! In buying a new dress, have the waistline at normal, not above.

In skirts, much of the interest is toward the back of the hips. But this shirred fullness across the back calls for sleek hips, sans padding. French designers are actually padding the hips to give a rounded look. We won't go in for that effect. American hips don't need any padding!

The bosom line is strong. We're never going back to flat chests and malnutrition. The newest neckline is high and round, which is a wonderful style for the thin girls and for the short girls, but not for girls with double chins!

MY DAY... By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Monday.—I have had three days in the country, and have driven up the lovely Hudson valley and back again, drinking in the beauty of the changing colors. I could have sung a psalm of joy every morning as I walked my little dog, Fala, through the woods. The wind blew the gay yellow and red leaves down from the trees with a sighing, rustling sound; but it is still gay, not like late November. Nature is very much alive and is not putting its creatures to sleep as yet for the winter months. Even the birds fly southward as though they liked the snappy air. To come into the house to an open fire and cup of tea, and the visit of some friends, is a very satisfying thing.

I must again through this column thank the many kind people who have sent me good wishes on my birthday. To be remembered is very pleasant and I know that this year many people wanted to be especially kind and thoughtful, and I deeply appreciate it. I don't suppose any of us like the disabilities which come with growing old, and, at 61, I have my share. I keep losing my glasses and then finding them in quite obvious places! I occasionally use a hearing aid for special purposes; I know that it makes a great difference in my own enjoyment, and also makes it easier for other people who are with me.

All of my life must slow up to some extent as the years go by. But, as far as I am concerned, the slowing up on the things which do not require physical prowess has not as yet been very noticeable. When I warn my friends that I am going to sit by the fire with a nice little lace cap on my head and a shawl about my shoulders, and knit baby things for the newest generation, they look at me with some incredulity. The day will come, however, and when it does I think it will be rather pleasant.

Perhaps because I have grown older, I think more often of the difficulties which face the children and the old people in countries across the seas. I wish all of us would urge our government to give its utmost help and keep our pledges scrupulously to UNRRA, for that organization is the manifestation that the government of our country really wants to help the suffering people throughout the world.

I hope that all of us will subscribe what we can to the National War Fund and to the various special appeals from the countries which have stood so valiantly during the war, side by side with us, but which are now in desperate need. The children and the old people will suffer the most, and I should like to think that the United States will be remembered in the future not only as the nation which fought and helped to win a war, but which gave generously to help people back on their feet when the war was over.

Young Returns to Studio For Next 'Claudia' Movie

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 16.—(INS) I know the fans are going to be happy to hear Robert Young will return to 20th for the next "Claudia" epic. After 20th thought of putting somebody else in the David role, there was so much emotion raised that Darryl Zanuck borrowed Bob to play opposite Claudia again, Dorothy McGuire to her fans.

I want to personally congratulate Lewis Stone on staying 22 years at one studio and always in leading roles. He has just put his John Hancock on a new long-term contract which marks the beginning of his 22d year with the same studio. I guess Mr. Stone and I have something in common. I celebrate my 25th year with the Hearst newspapers Nov. 15. Apparently, if we like a place, we stay.

Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger sure reversed the usual romantic order. Before they were married they used to have so many spats, but now they are one of the most beamingly wedded pairs to be seen anywhere.

Joan told me that before she makes a picture for her husband at Universal she's to do "None But the Blind" for RKO. That beautiful child, Elizabeth Taylor, flattered me by making my party for George and Al Delacorte her first appearance at an evening affair. She had bought a black velvet dress for the occasion and with her black hair and enormous dark blue eyes she was about the most ravishing young creature I've ever seen. Her very young pretty mother who came with her, is a dear, too. News that concerns Elizabeth is that Joe Pasternak, her producer, has bought an unproduced play, "The Birds and Bees," by Albert Mannheimer and Frederick Kohner, which he'll incorporate into his picture, "A Date With Judy."

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The news Anne Shirley had been in the hospital started a rumor she was very ill again. I am glad to say it is not true. The only reason Anne went into a hospital was so she could have a check to see if she was well enough to go overseas with her husband, Director Adrian Scott. She is.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Hoagy Carmichael spent hours learning to ride a horse and then when he showed up for work on "Canyon Passage" found the script had been changed and all he had to do was ride in an automobile; Dorothy Kingsley, the very pretty MGM writer, has very quietly obtained a divorce from Maurice Smith; Arturo de Cordova seemed very interested in Lorraine Miller, the Wallis' discovery, at Charley Foy's the other evening; Joe E. Brown trains out for Toledo to help his mother celebrate her seventy-sixth birthday; Jose Iturbi, who only spent three days in an hospital after a recent operation, reports for work at MGM on Monday; the new full-length blonde mink coat Marie Wilson is wearing, she said she bought for herself; Alexander Knox isn't only an intellectual on the screen, he is a real life, too. He's teaching a night course of motion picture appreciation at Peoples' Educational Center; Sally Eilers' brother, Bud, who has been overseas three years and never seen his baby, is back in this country. He'll go to his old job at Universal.

"I gave hard rubbin' the gate when I got so much MORE SUDS!"

"Super Suds' EXTRA SUDS do so much more work that my wash-days are much shorter days now!" says

Mrs. Dorothy Elsewer

"SUPER SUDS' EXTRA SUDS just won't take 'no' for an answer from the 'dirtiest dirt' Henry, Barbara, and Marilyn can find... And they find plenty. Seemed like I used to rub my fingers almost to the bone getting their clothes clean... but not now with Super Suds' harder-working suds!"

"SUDS SO GENTLE and easy-rinsed... due to no big undissolved stuff in the water... that I use Super Suds for all the baby's things. The materials stay soft and fluffy... Colors stay fresh and clear. Yes, those RICH, EXTRA SUDS from Super Suds are easy on delicate materials and on my hands too."

Kathleen Norris says:

23 Great Stories and Features in the November TRUE STORY

You'll love the gripping book-length novel "Deliver Us From Evil"... the complete novelette "I Guess We're Engaged"... and 21 other exclusive and revealing stories, serials, special features and vivid life-like photographs. It's no wonder millions read TRUE STORY every month... say it's America's number "1" magazine buy.

"The best escape from life's problems comes from meeting them squarely and overcoming them," says Kathleen Norris, beloved American writer and author of the popular CBS radio program "A Woman's Life."

"Of course, we can all profit by the living experiences of others in meeting our own problems," continues Mrs. Norris, "that's why I think every young woman will get helpful guidance, as well as reading pleasure from TRUE STORY MAGAZINE."

"NO TRICK to gettin' sheets snowy now... just Super Suds' EXTRA SUDS in my washer. Even dish towels come out of those RICH SUDS so white I hardly ever give 'em extra attention... and how that saves time! I don't add anything strong to the water either... so materials last longer!"

NEW, SUDSIER SUPER SUDS in the Same Familiar Big Blue Box

Super Suds

"THESE TRIFLING SUDS FROM MY OLD SOAP DIDN'T LAST AND WERE SHORT ON WORK TOO!"

"THAT BIG UNDISSOLVED STUFF GUMS UP THE RINSING... AND ISN'T MAKING SUDS, THAT'S SURE!"

"SUDS PILED UP IN THE SUPER SUDS BOTTLE UNTIL I JUST GASPED! THEY LASTED AND LASTED TOO!"

"NO BIG UNDISSOLVED STUFF HERE... ALL OF SUPER SUDS SEEMS TO MAKE SUDS... A BIG SOAP SAVING."

The "milk-bottle suds test" showed Mrs. Elsewer what was what about soaps!

Make the test and see for yourself. Shake up a teaspoon of your old wash-day soap and a glass of water—even hard or cool water will do—in a milk-bottle. Do the same with Super Suds in another milk-bottle. See if you don't get more suds. Yes, and thicker, richer suds from Super Suds!

Invasion Is Grand; But Tough To Be In

Editor's Note—This is one of a series of 16 articles taken from Sgt. Mauldin's best-selling book and illustrated with some of the famous wartime cartoons he drew while at the front in Europe.

INSTALLMENT XV

By BILL MAULDIN

Invasions are magnificent things to watch but awful things to be in. Evidently the Army liked to pick certain outfits, train them in landing operations, and then use the same men for every invasion. This is undoubtedly an efficient system, but it gets a little rough on the guys who do the invading.

My old division was one of several whose only rest seemed to come when they were waiting for boats to carry them to other lands where the language was different but the war was the same.

A lot of these dogfaces have put in more time at sea than half the men in the Navy. These salty infantrymen offer fatherly advice to young sailors on how to tie the bowline.

The doggies don't envy the Navy. They like its excellent food and dry bunks, but they don't like the cramped shipboard life, and bad as the beach may be, they don't want to stay aboard the ship when the enemy planes and the shore batteries start operating. A ship is a hellish big target, and there is no place you can hide.

Once he gets ashore, the foot soldier is in his element. He breathes easier, even while he scoops up sand by the helmetful to hide himself.

BEACH FAIR TARGET

Beaches are awful when they are being subjected to any kind of fire, because they are always crowded with men and equipment coming off the ships, and the enemy can throw a shell almost anywhere in the area and be sure of getting a hit. Strafing planes are the biggest terror, and the Germans always seemed to scrape up a sizable number to make beach-heads unpleasant.

The best invasion I ever attended was that of southern France. Part of the easiness I felt was the result of being with my old division, and even though nobody knew whether or not the beach-head was going to be tough, the boys were so accustomed to invasions that they didn't spend their time sweating it out on shipboard. We spent most of our time gambling and chewing the fat.

The invasion came off much better than we had expected, with only one division—the one which had been hurt so terribly at Salerno—meeting really tough resistance. The aerial and naval support was far greater than any of the divisions had ever had before. Everything went off according to schedule.

NO EASY WAR

Even though that campaign was a very fast one for the first few weeks, it was not an easy war. The guys were tired from constant marching and they were running into stubborn resistance in spots, but it was a tremendous change from Italy that their morale was a little better. They had expected a tough beachhead, and even tougher mountain fighting. They were very much relieved to find that they could push ahead.

The Maquis and FFI helped a lot, particularly in the mountains. By actually pitching in and helping to chase the krauts out, the French saved many of their towns from destruction. The French were honestly and sincerely glad to see the Americans come, and the farther north we worked, the more hospitable the people became. I had a feeling that we were regarded truly as liberators, and not as walking breadbaskets. It was a far cry from Italy.

FRENCH HATE BOCHE

I didn't really believe atrocity stories until I had been in France awhile. No actor on earth could have imitated the thorough contempt and disgust and hatred that was on the face of every French child who watched German prisoners march by. And it was awful to see the grief and horror of the bereaved as they forced the Germans to dig up the bodies of their victims and carry them away for decent burial. You never heard the word "Nazi." The word was "Boche" and it was spat out, not as a name but as an epithet.

In Grenoble, a few miles from the Swiss border, I ran into the five soldiers with whom I had shared the difficulties of publishing the 45th Division News, all over the Mediterranean theater, before I went to Stars and Stripes.

Every place the 45th Division News went, crazy things happened and I felt right at home again. We set up our editorial headquarters at Grenoble directly across press. I borrowed their forms, cut out a few items which were of interest only to men of the 45th Division, added several BBC bulletins and finally gave the stuff to the pressmen. They showed me that I still had one blank page, so I had the cartoon blown up to full-page size. I'm still trying to convince a lot of people that this was the only reason I gave myself a full page.

I told the printer to make 20,000 copies of the paper for me and was told that the bill for that many copies would be fifty dollars. I promised payment as soon as the mobile unit arrived. But I kept my fingers crossed, for I was beginning to have doubts about the legality of the whole business. It just didn't seem right for a cartoonist without any authority to proclaim himself editor and publisher of one of the largest and most respected Army newspapers and it was probably wrong to promise payment in government money for such a wildcat project. AWKWARD SITUATION Next morning I loaded the 20,000 papers into my jeep and started the long and tortuous ride down the winding roads which led out of the Alps. I was heading for Corps Headquarters, a hundreds miles away.

The men at Corps received me very well and they distributed the papers to the divisions within a few hours. But when I timidly mentioned the matter of fifty bucks which I had to raise some place, they weren't so enthusiastic. Why shouldn't Stars and Stripes pay for its own newspaper? Oh, you published it without any authority? Well, that's a little matter between you and Stars and Stripes.

I started back for Grenoble but less than halfway there, I was overtaken by a wild-looking crew on a weapons carrier. God save them if it wasn't the entire Stars and Stripes staff—everybody in the organization from editors to linotypers and a few officers. Silently I handed over the bill for fifty bucks. I guess they eventually paid it.

When we got back to Grenoble,

Stars and Stripes began legitimate publication and, for the first time in its long history, sent the paper back to front-line infantry troops, for most of the regimental columns were strung out for a hundred miles along the narrow road leading into Grenoble.

(To be concluded.)

the street from a regimental command post, and Fred Sheehan used the CP's portable radio to get the latest BBC news for our "Bulletins" column.

RUMORS RUN RAMPANT

All kinds of rumors spring up when troops go a week or so without news. There weren't so many rumors floating around the 45th Division because those boys had a paper. But when I got out to some of the other divisions around Grenoble, I heard quite a few rumors. I was told that Hitler had surrendered, and that the United States had started to invade the island of Japan. And I heard that Gen. Eisenhower had been killed by a sniper in London. There were many more stories, but those are a few I remember.

The Stars and Stripes mobile unit hadn't yet arrived and the troops needed news. So my five irresponsible companions persuaded me to publish a Grenoble edition of Stars and Stripes.

I batted out a drawing and the engravers did a rush job. Then I waited until the Division News was matted and on the way to
